ORDERS 2 ARRESTS IN CROCKER WILL CASE

District Attorney Moran Acts on Alleged Confessions of Jurors That They Accepted Money in Famons Litigation Involving Big Estate.

District Attorney John B. Moran to-day ordered the arrest of Matthew F. Killion, a painter, of Saratoga street, East Boston, and John W. Cronan, a plumber, of No. 21 Palmer street, Roxbury, following the charge that two of the jurors in the contest over the will of Uriel H. Crocker accepted bribes.

Here is the statement of the District Attorney as to the order for the arrests:

"All the information which I had last Fall as to bribery of some of the Crocker jury I received then in my capacity as attorney, and by the provisions of the law I could not disclose it under penalty of disbarment without consent of the person or persons consulting me. I did receive consent to make public so much as I used in my speeches, but I never was permitted to give the names of the criminals, although I was then informed that when elected District Attorney I would be authorized by my client to make use of all information that I had received.

END CONNECTION WITH CLIENTS.

"After election and before being sworn in as District Attorney I terminated my connection with all clients.

"As District Attorney I could not use the information already obtained and possessed as counsel, although I was no longer counsel.

"In this condition the matter has rested, although I have never entirely given up hope that in some way evidence would be forthcoming which would enable me to act without violating my obligation as an attorney.

"Certain jurymen, having, according to the Boston Post article of this morning, confessed their guilt to a reporter, it becomes my duty as District Attorney to prosecute them upon that evidence.

"I have directed the police department to arrest them immediately, to make complaint in the lower court and have them held for the Grand Jury, which is not now sitting.

"I have retained Attorney Felix W. McGettrick to act in the lower court hearing for the Commonwealth.

"JOHN B. MORAN,
"District Attorney."

Cry Of Independence League Delegates in Faneuil Hall:

"NOMINATE JOHN B. MORAN"

ENTHUSIASM MARKS FIRST STATE CONVENTION OF THE NEW PARTY.

Moran for Governor is the demand of the delegates to the State Convention of the Independence League of Massahusetts, which is called to order this afternoon at 2 o'clock in Faneuil Hall.

Enthusiasm, not boisterous nor expending itself in noise, but that quiet, confined, yet contagious determination that breeds respect marks the demeanor of the Independence League delegates.

They know their principles and almost unanimously have they rallied around one man as their standard-bearer. But one name, that of District Attorney John B. Moran, is mentioned for the head of the ticket that is to be named to-day.

"We mant a man for Governor of Massachusetts who dares," said James E. Corfrew, of the Central Labor League of Quincy, and Secretary of the Independence League of that city.

WANT A MAN WHO DARES.

"We want a man who dares, a man of judgment, an independent man," continued Mr. Corfrew to a group of delegates who were gathered around him to-day. "We want a man who owns no boss but right, honor and fair-dealing."

"You're right, Corfrew," they said, "and John B. Moran is the man we want and will have."

That is the keynote of the feeling that is prevailing among the hundreds of delegates in Boston to-day.

These men are announcing a new gospel of political independence, and they believe that John B. Moran, the man unafraid, is he who should lead.

"The people like Moran because he has an aggressiveness and an outspoken determination to fulfill his obligations to them," said Captain Thomas H. Bates, a delegate from Ward 21 and a life-long Republican.

"Are the Cambridge delegates uninstructed?" said Augustus Seaver of Cambridge. "Yes, they are uninstructed. What's the use of instructing delegates to the first State convention of the Independence League of Massachusetts? So far as I know, there is but one name thought of, one man in any of our minds for the first place on the ticket, and that man is John B. Moran.

BUT ONE CANDIDATE.

"We know his platform. He is for the right, and he is not afraid to declare himself. That's why the Independence League delegates are to a man in favor of him. If there is a single delegate in favor of any other man for our nomination for Governor I have not seen him."

"Our delegates from Somerville are not instructed, either," said George E. Gookin. "I am one of them, and I think that we all will vote for Moran. No other man has been thought of. I do not see how we could think of any other candidate in view of Moran's record."

"Well, we've got our eyes open," laughed Delegate T. L. Keefe of Everett. "We are here under hard and fast instructions for John B. Moran, but instructions are useless in this convention by the people and for the people. We know what we want—we want Moran."

Every in-coming train brought more delegates and more Moran partisans. The unanimity of sentiment is significant of the popular demand for a man of the people who will serve the people first, last and always.

PARTY LINES FORGOTTEN.

"Oh, the Cape's all right!" said Delegate Maurice R. Phinney. "We are just as much for John B. Moran on the tiptoe of Cape Cod as you other delegates are. No, we have no instructions. What's the use of ordering men to do what they all intend to do anyway?"

Party lines are forgotten in this convention. Any upheaval of the people brings its adherents from all parties, and in the demand of clean government, without bosses or machine affiliations, to-day are seen Democrats and Republicans arm in arm, actuated by one new purpose, just as they were more than forty years ago, when it was union versus disunion.

"The majority of the Lynn delegation are in favor of John B. Moran for the head of the ticket, and the majority of our delegation have been Republicans until now," said E. R. Fairbanks of Lynn, as he mingled with the other delegates from all over the State to-day.

Arrangements for the convention were completed at an informal gathering of officers and delegates from the various leagues last evening in the Quincy House, where many of the delegates are stopping.

Lively scenes were witnessed about that hotel, especially in the vicinity of parlors F and G, on the eve of the State convention. In numbers and enthusiasm the gathering rivalled those of past years on the "night before" the conventions of either the Republican or Democratic party.

In the early hours of the evening the delegates and officers of the various leagues throughout the State gathered about the

AUTO RACE AND BRIDE FOR TRACY

"Daredevil Joe" Speeds Wildly to Win Vanderbilt Elimination Contest.

SHOWS RECKLESS DARING

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WESTBURY, L. I., Sept. 22.—"Daredevil Joe" Tracy won the auto race in the Vanderbilt elimination tests to-day, his time for ten turns around the course of 27.71 miles being 5 hours, 27 minutes 45 seconds. At the same time Tracy wins a bride, Miss Millicent Taylor of Wichita, Kas. Before the race started Miss Taylor told Tracy that if he won the race she would wed him. Tracy replied that he would win.

Driving a furious pace all the way, and held up by several small delays, Tracy put up an exhibition of daring and speed which caused thousands to gasp. Over a muddy course, sprinkled by a heavy rain, he drove his big ninety-horsepower Locomobile around curves on two wheels, up hill and down. At one time he reached a speed of eighteen miles in fourteen minutes.

Following him as best they could, and sometimes leading, Lytle and Leblon, his hardest contestants, put on the finishing touches to the wildest auto race ever seen in this country.

Leblon came in second at 11:56:25.

Tracy's most furious dash on the fourth lap of the elimination race wrested the lead from Hubert Leblon and broke all records for the distance in the remarkable time of 29 minutes 48 seconds for the 29.71 miles.

Five Have Accidents.

Within the first twenty-five minutes after the start five of the big racing cars, whirling over the roads at terrific speed, met with accidents.

The sixty-horsepower Matheson car, driven by Mongini, which started third, was making Skinner hill, about ten miles from the mark, when without warning one of the tires blew out.

The big machine swerved and struck a telegraph pole at the bottom of a fifteen-foot embankment. Mongini was hurled through the air, striking the pole. John Green, Mongini's mechanician, was also flung from the car, but struck a soft grass bank. Although in intense pain Mongini immediately tried to fix up the machine, and announced doggedly that he would get back in the race.

Hundreds of people who had gathered

SOCIALISTS TO PLAN STRIKE

MANHEIM, Germany, Sept. 22.—To come up for discussion at the annual conference of the German Socialist Party, which begins here to-morrow, will be the question of whether a general strike shall be called throughout Germany.

There has been a strong demand from a considerable section of the party that instead of spending year after year in tedious political agitation without much visible effect, the Socialist party should bring the entire industry of the country to a standstill through a general strike, thus paralyzing the forces of law and order at a stroke. One voter in every three was a Socialist at the last election in Germany.

SAVANNAH THEATRE BURNS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 22.—The Savannah Theatre, built in 1818, was burned to the ground last night. The loss is $75,000, covered by insurance. There is no other theatre in Savannah, but some hall will be fitted to provide for engagements booked.

TUFTS STUDENT 11 YEARS OLD

Tufts College will have enrolled in the freshman class, when it opens to-day the youngest collegian probably in the United States. He is Norbert Weiner, eleven years old, the son of Leo Weiner, assistant professor of Slavonic languages at Harvard. The boy has before attracted attention because of his seeming precocious mental development.

Norbert was born at Columbia, Mo., November 26, 1894. His father was born and educated in Russia, finishing his education at Berlin, and has been here about twenty-five years.

At eighteen months he knew his alphabet and began to read at three. When eight years old he was reading Darwin, Huxley, Ribot and Haeckel.

The boy passed examination and entered the third year in the Ayer High School, graduating last June at the head of his class. He also passed all the Tufts examinations last June.

Young Weiner expects to make philosophy his principal study in college.

TYPHOON SWEEPS OVER CAVITE BAY; MANY DEAD

MANILA, Sept. 22.—The Bay of Cavite, the scene of Admiral Dewey's great victory over the Spanish fleet on May 1, 1898, was to-day visited by a disastrous typhoon. It is believed considerable loss of life has resulted and enormous damage has been caused.

The storm's scope extended far south of Cavite, but telegraph wires on land are down in all directions from the city and it is impossible to get details of what has happened.

At Cavite the arsenal and shipping were damaged.

The gunboat Arayat is ashore and several lighters were sunk.

Shipping in Cavite Bay is known to have suffered heavily. Nearly a score of vessels are said to have foundered in the bay or been driven ashore.

Immense damage has been caused on land. Buildings were blown down, trees uprooted, houses unroofed or destroyed and sheds and barns blown to pieces. It will be impossible to give any idea of the results until a search can be made of the wrecked buildings, as it is believed many persons are buried in the ruins of their homes.

Debris from the destroyed buildings fills the streets at many points. Losses are said to have occurred among the soldiers stationed there. The gunboat Arayat was driven ashore and is badly damaged. Several of her crew are reported to have been lost and others injured.

Only the fact that many of the buildings are constructed of stone and so were able to resist the efforts of the storm prevented the loss from being much heavier.

FELL 4 STORIES, HIT DOCTOR SUMMONED

WATERBURY, Ct., Sept. 22.—Punching a doctor who tried to examine him, John Brenison, a carpenter who fell from the roof of a four-story building, yesterday, hurried back to work.

"I don't mind a little tumble, but I am afraid of a sawbones," he explained.

SAVE OLD PAUL REVERE HOUSE

Through generous response to the appeal for funds by the Paul Revere Memorial Association, the old Paul Revere House has been saved to posterity. The building will cost $12,200. The money is now in the hands of the committee, and the deeds will be passed at once. Immediate repairs are necessary if much of its value is to be preserved. It is estimated this work will cost in the vicinity of $6,000. The committee has $3,000 on hand for this purpose, and makes an earnest appeal to the public for the balance.

THE WEATHER.

Scattered showers and warmer to-night and Sunday morning, followed by clearing in the afternoon and night; light easterly to southerly winds.

High tide—1:40 a. m., 2:04 p. m.

office or visited one another's rooms and discussed the excellent prospects for a successful gathering of the independent forces of the State in Faneuil Hall to-day. In all the discussion there was not a tone of misgiving.

CONFIDENCE A WATCHWORD.

Confidence was the watchword. Differences of opinion there were on minor matters, but on the great and principal issues that form the corner stone of the Independence League movement a unanimous voice was heard. As to the head of the ticket there was no dispute. Moran, John B. Moran, was the name on everybody's lips.

In groups the delegates from all parts of the State, from the Cape districts to the Berkshires, from the northernmost counties to Buzzards Bay, stood about and talked over the candidates for Lieutenant-Governor and the other offices on the ticket. Many names were suggested. In general a man prominent in the labor movement was favored for second place. E. Gerry Brown of Brockton and John Golden of Fall River, president of the Textile Workers' Union of America, were prominently mentioned, and a lively contest is promised between them over the nomination for second place on the ticket.

By 9 o'clock interest was centred upon parlors F and G, where many of the presidents and secretaries of the leagues and delegates to the convention, numbering in all more than fifty persons, gathered together, and in the course of an informal smoke talk discussed the program of the day. The gathering was strikingly in contrast to the ante-convention conclaves of the old political parties. Matters of interest to the Independence League were discussed pro and con.

Everybody had a voice and details of the approaching convention were gone over in a refreshingly frank and open manner. So far as was possible a tentative programme was agreed upon. Committees were discussed and it is expected that the committees on resolutions, permanent organization, credentials and rules and order of business, the members of which were selected by the leagues throughout the State, will be approved by the convention.

The sentiment was unanimous for George W. Curtis of Springfield to act as temporary chairman of the convention, while the name of the Hon. William N. Osgood, president of the State organization, was suggested for the office of permanent chairman.

EACH DELEGATE TO HAVE VOICE

Among those who took a prominent part in the discussion were: Captain Thomas H. Bates of Ward 21, Boston; E. R. Fairbanks of Lynn, Augustus Seaver of Cambridge, Herbert E. Bryant of Springfield, Hon. William N. Osgood of Lowell, George W. Curtis of Springfield, Michael S. Drew of Ward 17, T. L. Keefe of Everett, Maurice R. Phinney of Barnstable, Granville S. MacFarland, Dr. E. S. Taylor and James E. Corprew of Quincy.

It was decided to call the convention to order at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and, unless sooner adjourned, a recess will be taken at 6 o'clock. By this time it is expected that organization will be perfected and the business of the convention transacted up to and including the nomination of the candidate for Governor.

The delegates will reconvene at 8 o'clock to nominate a lieutenant-governor.

Speeches will be limited, it was agreed, to five minutes, and prolonged only by consent of the delegates. The same thing applies to nomination speeches, excepting that they shall be limited to ten minutes. The suggestion that a representative of each delegation should speak for the delegation was promptly rejected. Every delegate, it was decided, is entitled to a voice in the proceedings.

Secretary Davis's announcement that the indications promised a large and enthusiastic convention was received with applause, and the gathering did not break up until nearly midnight.

DELEGATES WANT "MAN WHO DARES"

There was a great gathering of the delegates to the Independence League convention at the Quincy House last night. Among the first to arrive were Augustus Seaver, Albin M. Richards, Edward Gallagher and S. W. St. Clair of Cambridge, James E. Corprew of Quincy and Dr. C. S. Taylor. Captain Thomas H. Bates, delegate from Ward 21, announced himself as a former Republican legislator from California, a man who was out to fight for the rights of the people. He received a cordial welcome, and remarked that in his ward the league found many sympathizers.

"There are a large number of men," he said, "who are not prominently identified with our league, but are working for us. Our movement has begun to show that we have character, ability and can command the confidence of the people. If we can keep this up, and you gentlemen know we are going to, we will command great strength. I have been traveling in the State considerably, and have found the sentiment is greatly in favor of the league, but people are waiting to see what we are going to do.

Want of Confidence in Old Parties.

"There is a universal sentiment of want of confidence in the two old organizations. People are discouraged with what the recent Legislature has thrown up in the way of exposing vice and corruption, and are looking for a new party. The recent controversies between John B. Moran and Josiah Quincy have done much to open the eyes of the people. They have shown many men who have enjoyed the confidence of the voters to be nothing more than tools of the trusts. Mr. Moran's candidacy is favored by many with whom I have talked. My discussions show that the people like him because he has an aggressiveness and determination to fulfill his obligations to the people. I am of the opinion that the silent voters will do much for him."

James E. Corprew, secretary for the Central Labor Union, The Amalgamated Metal Local 376, Wage Earners' Club and the Independence League in Quincy, stated that his league sends to the convention today 12 delegates, all of whom have been former strong Republican factors. "The majority of the men," said Mr. Corprew; "Yes, I can safely say over two-thirds of our members, are former Republicans. We are all instructed for John B. Moran.

Want "Man Who Dares."

"In Quincy we are having a hard fight on a canal question. We want a canal from Fall River to Boston that will pass through Quincy and the coming elections mean much for us in this respect. The Quincy League is an enthusiastic one, rapidly on the increase, and we look to support men who will further our interests. In our city we want a man for Governor who dares, a man of judgment, an independent man. As for a lieutenant-governor, we want a labor man and it will either be Golden or Brown."

Augustus Seaver of Cambridge told the delegates that the Cambridge Independence League was one of the coming ones of the State. He predicts that it will be one of the largest within the bounds of Massachusetts. The delegates go to the convention uninstructed, but carrying a strong Moran sentiment. Mr. Seaver said his heart and soul were in his work and he knew that the formation already had begun to show strength. Continuing, he said: "We have, we know, been instrumental in having the City Council vote to appoint a committee to look into the matter of the city running an ice plant for its own departments. If this step is carried through we shall consider it a great point for the Independence League and the Municipal Ownership League."

Delegate George E. Gookin of Somerville informed his brother delegates that the Somerville delegates would come to the convention uninstructed, with a leaning towards Moran. They favor for the second place on the ticket a labor man and will be satisfied with either Golden or Brown. Mr. Gookin is a former Republican and said that at a recent meeting it was estimated that two-thirds of the members of the Somerville branch of the Independence League were former Republicans. In Somerville the Independence League is gaining strength, according to Mr. Gookin, because men of both parties are dissatisfied with the loose caucus law, which gives the machine great sway. He told the delegates that in his city there was much opposition to Senator Stevens securing a renomination, owing to his work in killing the overtime bill.

Delegates T. L. Keefe and T. J. Hawkins of Everett, discussing the political situation with Captain Bates, said the machines know the people will vote for whoever is put up by their party, no matter what his record is, from force of habit.

"Workingmen's Eyes Opened."

"This will continue," said Delegate Hawkins, "until we get a new party that will put up men that the people have confidence in. But the workingman is now giving some of his time to politics. He has had his eyes open and if he would only study the situation a short time every evening, he would soon find out who the candidates were that were for him and who were against him. We need time, but with the right kind of patience and perseverence we will win out."

Delegate Keefe stated that the eleven delegates from the Everett league were instructed for Moran and said the league had already endorsed Candidates William E. Weeks, Republican, and T. J. Hawkins, Democrat, for representatives.

Delegate Maurice R. Phinney, from the Cape district, said the eight delegates from his league were uninstructed, but favored Moran. He told the delegates that he had permission from Representative H. A. Hardin a strong Republican and staunch friend of Governor Guild, to say that Mr. Hardin had told him that Mr. Moran would carry the Cape by a large majority.

League is Gaining Strength.

Delegates G. W. Curtis and H. C. Bryant of Springfield referred with pride to the rapidly growing branch of the Independence League in Western Massachusetts. They said that within the past week the growth had been very large, and that the league had followers of all parties, the Republican element standing out prominently. The seventeen delegates come to the convention uninstructed on all questions. The Independence League in Springfield at present is greatly interested in the senatorial fight in the First Hampden District. Richard A. Hennessey, Democrat, is a candidate for senatorial honors. He is an old labor fighter, and has the support of the league, while his many followers, seeing he approves the league, are flocking to the league officers for membership blanks.

E. Gerry Brown of Brockton dropped in for a few minutes' talk. He informed the delegates with whom he talked that the Independence League was gaining strength in Brockton. He expects that he would secure at least every laboring man in the city. He said some were hanging off to see what would develop at to-day's convention.

Labor Man for Second Place.

Delegate E. R. Fairbanks of Lynn expects to have sixteen delegates to-day. He is a former Republican, and has been in many hot political battles in the South. He states that the majority of the Lynn delegates are former Republicans, and that they have been instructed to favor Moran. For Lieutenant-Governor the odds were a trifle in favor of Golden, but the candidates are uninstructed, except to see that a labor man receives the nomination.

He reports the Lynn branch of the league in a flourishing condition, and says the working people as a whole are in favor of the league's work. "Many of them, however," said Mr. Fairbanks, "are prevented from coming out in the open and joining the league, because if they did they would have to choose between it and their positions."

REVERE DELEGATION ENTHUSIASTIC FOR LEAGUE PRINCIPLES

One of the most enthusiastic delegations to attend the convention of the Independence League to-day is that from Revere, when the seven delegates sent to represent that town will be in attendance to assist in putting a full ticket in the field for the State election. The delegates are among the town's most prominent business and labor men and are highly in favor of the principles of the organization. The delegates are President Charles D. Garbutt, Dr. J. G. Campbell, William Harney, James A. McDonough, Henry G. Hichborn, Frank Smith and Vernon L. Shannon.

Although the Revere League was organized only a week ago, it already has a membership of nearly 100. Other leagues are being organized in the town, and before the State election there will be three leagues, one in each precinct.

Although the Revere League has considerable to contend with in the town because of the various independent political clubs, it has made one of the most rapid gains in membership of any organization yet formed in the town. A prominent conservative voter said:

"It would be the best thing that ever happened in this town if all the independent organizations in the town combined with the Independence League and fought on its principles. There has never been an organization formed in this town to my knowledge, either political or social, that has made such progress as the Independence League, and it is my intention to organize a league in my precinct."

WARD 24 SWINGS INTO LINE WITH CHEERS FOR LEAGUE

Ward 24, Dorchester, swung into line last night in the strong Independence League movement which is sweeping the country. Blake Hall, Fields Corner, never held a more enthusiastic gathering, the seating capacity being taxed to its limit.

Mr. R. T. Allen opened the meeting, and, after outlining the principles of the organization, the following officers were elected: John J. O'Hare, president; John A. Anderson, vice-president; William McGuire, secretary and treasurer.

The following delegates were chosen to attend to-day's convention at Faneuil hall: John J. O'Hara, George Denneby, Henry Lawler, August Haines, Edmond Coffee, James O'Brien, John Mara and George Finnigan.

Mr. O'Hara, on taking the chair, asked the members to carry the good news to their friends that Dorchester had at last declared her independence from political tyranny and "bossism" and urged all to join hands in uplifting the movement.

Mr. John Reagan said: "No amount of persuasion or argument can persuade some people as to the great necessity of a reform movement. The greater part of us this evening have sacrificed our time to enlist in a cause to which we have been drawn by the magnetic name it bears, but I do not hesitate to say that there are only a few who are impressed with the importance of the movement. 'Be not the first by whom the new is tried' is good advice to follow, and by following this movement the welfare of every citizen cannot fail to be a little good fruit born, and we need not fear the distinction that will come to use as charter members of the Independence League of Massachusetts. What is the real need of action is the first question put by every thinking man. In a word the situation is this:

"Selfishness, jealousy, greed of power and wealth have taken the place of the ideal Democracy and Republicanism of Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson. The large corporations have found favor with the men who are representing us. The desire of the people is contemptuously disregarded and we are now re-fighting the battle that we won in 1776 for liberty and independence."

TAKE R. R. HEAD; SAY ENGINES ALLOWED TO USE SOFT COAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—William H. Newman, president of the New York Central railroad, was formally placed under arrest in the offices of the company yesterday by order of Health Officer Darlington.

He was charged with permitting the use of soft coal by the locomotives and round houses of the company in the borough of the Bronx.

Newman protested against his arrest and Dr. Darlington consented to allow the foreman of the round house to appear in court in his place.

RUNAWAY CRASHES INTO PLATE GLASS

A horse driven by Charles H. Savage, of East Everett, was frightened by an elevated train and dashed into a plate glass window in the store at 2105 Washington street, owned by Louis Berenson, last night in Roxbury.

Mr. Savage's wife and child were with him but happily none of the occupants were injured.

OPEN WHITNEY BARREL IN THE WAR ON MORAN

The Whitney barrel has been tapped, and there is a stream of coin wending its course towards the cities and towns in the effort to drown the Moran army that is marching to victory.

Since Whitney and Quincy went to New York this week assurances have been received that there will be enough to pay the freight for all who desert the Moran forces, and no sooner had they returned from a visit to Wall street than the bung in the barrel was pulled out and the pap is gushing forth.

There has been an understanding as to the Whitney candidacy, and it is that he is to have the assistance of the Boston Elevated, the Shawmut Bank forces, the gas and electric light monopoly, the mill owners of Lowell, Lawrence and Fall River and the money interests all over the State to defeat Moran for the nomination.

Ample Funds Promised.

The Mystic Seven, with Josiah Quincy as penman and John A. Sullivan as prompter, waited for word from Whitney before they sent out their long distance manifesto. Promises of ample funds were received from New York, and the Boston end of the financial graft syndicate also promised to make good.

There is no hope of either nominating Whitney or electing him if he is nominated. The plan is to defeat Moran and elect Governor Guild, who will serve the money purpose on Beacon Hill just as well as would Henry M. Whitney.

For the purpose of corrupting the voters money is now flowing into Worcester, Lawrence, Fall River, Lowell and other cities and large towns.

Ex-Mayor Quincy let the cat out of the bag when he asks the delegates pledged to Moran to violate their sacred obligations to their constituents. Ex-Mayor Quincy says:

Would Ignore Pledges.

"Moreover, it must not be forgotten that the pledging of delegates has no binding force in any case, and the question whether it has any moral force must depend upon circumstances.

"Again, it is very questionable whether a Moran pledge made at a time when no alternative to his candidacy was in sight ought to be considered as binding now that an opportunity is offered to secure Henry M. Whitney as the Democratic standard bearer. We know of a great many voters, particularly in Boston, who would be favorable to the nomination of Mr. Moran as against anyone else who has been suggested other than Mr. Whitney."

TRACEY WINS AUTO RACE AND BRIDE

around the famous Hairpin turn near Westbury saw one of the most thrilling incidents of the race which resulted in the disabling of the Frayer-Miller 110-horsepower car driven by George Belden. Belden, with Tracy a second behind him, had just started to round the turn when Tracy put on an extra burst of speed and the two cars swung around the turn neck and neck.

Passed Like a Shot.

They just grazed each other, and the crowd held its breath. Belden saw the danger and shot on his brake, closing his clutch. In another moment the Frayer-Miller car's gear snapped, and Tracy passed it like a shot out of a gun.

The crowd gave a yell of warning as Keeler, in his Olds, came along. Belden tried to move his car, but it would not budge. Keeler managed to swerve into the ditch and got safely by.

Meanwhile at the East Norwich turn of the course, Walter Christie slipped his brake rods and was unable to slow down to take the curve. Finally he got the brake on and came to a sudden stop in the middle of the road. Tracy was coming up behind at a furious pace, trying to make up the six minutes he had lost, and just missed colliding with Christie.

Tracy Loses Lead.

Tracy, after breaking all records for the course on his fourth lap, lost his lead to LeBlon and Lytle on the fifth lap because he had to stop at the Lakeville turn for gasolene and water.

Lytle was going like a fiend, pursued like an avenging spirit by the bewhiskered LeBlon and Tracy.

In another dash of speed Tracy gained three minutes on the leader in the sixth lap, and lowered his own record made in the fourth lap to 29 minutes and 29 2-5 seconds, better than any time ever made for the 29.51 miles.

Montjini, who struck a telegraph pole early in the race, is more seriously injured than was at first believed and has been carried to the Nassau County Hospital.

Le Blon snatched the lead from Tracey in the seventh lap and got a lead of one minute and sixteen seconds.

CLUB WOMAN SUES HUSBAND

There was considerable surprise in Chelsea society last night when it was learned that separation proceedings have been brought by Mrs. Mary E. Burnham, a well-known society woman of that city and treasurer of its leading social organization, the Chelsea Woman's Club, against her husband, John W. Burnham, a former Chelsea man, but now of New York city.

Another suit brought by Mrs. Burnham, and which is still pending, is against Mrs. Ida J. Cromwell, who conducts a New York boarding house, charging alienation of her husband's affections, and which petitions for $20,000 damages.

RAISE MONEY TOFREETUCKER HOME OF DEBT

Friends Plan to Aid Grief-Stricken Parents of the Dead Boy.

TO MEET IN FANEUIL HALL

By Eleanor Ames.

THE famous Tucker case, which for two years kept the people of New England stirred to the depths by varying emotions, is to be revived to-morrow by two meetings held in Faneuil Hall at 2:30 in the afternoon and 7:30 in the evening.

The prime object of these meetings is to raise part or whole of the $2,000 needed to clear the mortgage from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tucker at Auburndale.

At the time that Charles L. Tucker was executed a resolution was made by sympathizers to clear the home of his sorrowing parents of debt.

Some money was collected at that time and more promised.

The Rev. William Copley Winslow, William Peet and several others were active in the plan, but no definite form of action was arranged.

The absence of the Rev. Mr. Winslow during the Summer made impossible any effort on his part, and the project was allowed to rest.

"Sympathy Still Warm."

The meetings to-morrow bear testimony that the sympathy expressed then has not grown cold, and that the purpose was earnest.

The announcement is that to-morrow's meetings are intended to be "A Christian, charitable work, based on truth, justice and equity." Anyone interested in the plan is invited to attend, but a special invitation is extended to clergymen and attorneys.

It is declared that some tremendously important points of law will be brought out, although it seems to me that the capable firm of attorneys that so faithfully looked after Charles Louis Tucker's interests must have left few very vital legal points undiscovered.

William Peel of No. 10½ Common street is to be the chief speaker and the meeting will be presided over by Edward Doherty.

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker are still living in the pleasant little home that means so much to them, but they know that unless some help is given them they can never hope to wipe away the debt which rests upon it.

All Summer Mrs. Tucker has had a riot of bright flowers in the yard and on the vine-screened piazza, and the little lawn has been kept like a patch of emerald velvet.

Behind the house there has been a small vegetable garden which has been cared for by Mr. Tucker despite his feebleness.

"Pitifully Feeble."

And Mr. Tucker is pitifully feeble. Although he goes to and from his work at the railroad station, the exertion is a severe tax upon his weakened heart and broken strength.

Mrs. Tucker has rallied from the inevitable collapse which followed all her long nerve tension and is smiling, bravehearted as of old, although the stamp of a great grief has left its mark upon her face.

The thought that they may even, despite the sympathy of friends, have to lose the home which is all they have in their old age, is a great worry to Mr. and Mrs. Tucker.

Into the home their put all their savings. Since then they have constantly repaired and remodelled and improved it until they have come to look upon it as almost built by them.

Its loss would rob them of their last comfort and kill their hope for life.

TWO SUMMONED BY MORAN ON STORY OF BRIBERY IN CROCKER WILL CASE

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ISSUES STATEMENT REGARDING HIS KNOWLEDGE OF THE AFFAIR.

Anna J. Fitz. She had been a stenographer. This marriage was unexpected to his brother, George H. Crocker, present chairman of the Boston Transit Commission. It came as even more of a surprise to his sons, George Uriel Crocker and Joseph Crocker. They were men when their father took to himself a second wife. They were all well-to-do in this world's goods, but resented their father's marriage.

Anna J. Crocker made herself invaluable to her husband. She was his helpmeet, indeed, and made herself well informed in all of his business affairs, as her early training had made her well capable of doing.

After the death of Uriel H. Crocker his will showed that he had given everything to his young wife, his house and all his lands, the pictures and furnishings in the house and everything. In all the estate was estimated at about $800,000.

The sons at once sought to break the will of their father in the Probate Court, but failed there. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court and tried and the jury disagreed, six voting to sustain the will and six voting to break it. At a second trial the jurors agreed and the will was broken.

The two men who have been summoned by the District Attorney were seen by reporters of the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day, and both refused to discuss the statement.

Matthew F. Killion of East Boston said:

"I wish to deny emphatically this statement attributed to me. I shall bring the matter of using my name in this manner to the attention of the District Attorney to-day."

John W. Cronan of No. 21 Palmer street, Roxbury, said:

"I refuse to say anything concerning the truth of this statement attributed to me."

At a previous sitting of the Grand Jury, which took up the Crocker will investigation, the following men were summoned:

Matthew F. Killion, Patrick J. Cummings, William J. Hartnett, Walter F. Fredericks, assistant clerk of the Supreme Court; William D. Turner, lawyer; John W. Cronan, John J. Swain, John E. Crowley, Thomas Hunt, A. N. Farmington, C. Singleton, M. L. Berkowitz, C. L. Carter, A. R. Thayer, R. R. Freeman and William H. Pelton.

MAYOR BACKS O'CONNELL TO WIN WARD 20

Bets a Dinner That He Will Defeat Logan for Congress Nomination.

Mayor Fitzgerald has just bet a dinner for four that Joseph F. O'Connell will carry Ward 20, Dorchester, in the primaries next Tuesday against his opponent, Edward L. Logan. This latest move of the Mayor's is a puzzle to both the O'Connell and Logan adherents.

While asserting that the administration is neutral in the congressional contest in this district, as well as in all other contests, except that between Dixon and Kiley, it has been accepted by everybody but the O'Connell people that the administration was with Logan. This was the condition upon which Logan withdrew from the councillor fight in favor of "Tom" Grady, of Ward 6.

Whether the Mayor simply believes that it was a good betting proposition that O'Connell would carry his home ward or whether he has shifted his position is what the Logan and O'Connell people are trying to find out to-day. The bet was made with Colonel William L. Grady of Ward 20, formerly a Red Devil leader, but now a Logan shouter. The dinner will take place the coming week at the Hotel Italy in the Mayor's old stamping ground.

LOST MALDEN WOMAN FOUND

Mrs. Bertha C. Ledger was found yesterday at the house of Mrs. William Brown in Stoneham after three days' absence from her home on Salem place, Malden. The police, her husband and neighbors searched everywhere for her since her disappearance Tuesday in a fit of temporary insanity.

Last night the woman regained her sanity and said after leaving home she walked through Forestdale Cemetery in Malden and thence to the house of Simon A. Moses, No. 407 Washington street, asking food and shelter.

Wednesday she went to the home of Mrs. William Brown on Isabella street. Here she remained two nights, refusing to give her name. Yesterday she recovered her senses sufficiently to tell her name and the Browns immediately communicated with Mr. Ledger.

LABOR FIGHTS GROSVENOR AS ITS ENEMY

Lynn Wage Earners Will Seek to Prevent the Senator's Renomination.

LYNN, Sept. 22.—At a largely attended meeting of the Wage Earners' Club here last night, Senator Grosvenor was condemned for his action against the labor interests of his district, and it was resolved that every effort be made to defeat him at the Republican caucus next Tuesday night, when he will seek to be renominated.

Among the speakers were William P. Doherty, president of the Central Labor Union; J. F. Sahorey of the Machinists' Union, J. Edward Coen, second vice president of the State Branch American Federation of Labor, and Business Agent J. E. McMahon of the Machinists' Union.

In several speeches it was charged that Senator Grosvenor had voted against the "leased shoe machinery bill" in the Senate last year, thereby making it impossible for smaller companies to compete against the trust, injuring the prospects of the smaller shoe manufacturers and preventing shoe shop employes from getting an increase in wages. Senator Grosvenor was also accused of being one of the principal causes of the present machinists' strike in this city. The machinists have been on strike since May 1, holding out for a fifty-hour week.

It was said that Senator Grosvenor had ambitions to be president of the Senate should he be returned to Beacon Hill this Winter. The speakers said that as Senator Grosvenor was openly antagonistic to organized labor and its interests, that he should be defeated and a man more faithful to the interests of his constituents nominated in his stead.

2 CREWS, DEATH DELIVERED, HERE

The rescued crews of the two schooners lost off the coast of Carolina during the recent terrible storm were brought into Boston yesterday by the Nachoochee, a Savannah liner, and the Chippewa, of the Clyde line.

The former steamer had aboard six survivors of the Nellie Floyd, which sunk with Captain Matheson, who refused to desert his boat.

The seven survivors of the schooner J. W. Balano arrived on the Chippewa. One of the crew perished with the schooner.

The Nellie Floyd's crew floated at sea twenty-four hours on a waterlogged raft and suffered terribly from exhaustion and exposure.

LOMASNEY IS ASSAILED IN THE REPUBLIC

Mayor's Paper Declares Ward 8 Leader's Power Is Gone and He Is a Republican.

WARNS HIS FOLLOWERS

To-day's issue of the Republic, "[illegible]," popularly supposed to be Mayor Fitzgerald's paper, devotes a whole page to a denunciation of Martin M. Lomasney and Daniel J. Kiley, and predicts that primary day, next Tuesday, when the Dixon-Kiley senatorial contest will be settled "will mark another chapter in the downward career of Martin M. Lomasney and Daniel J. Kiley, and they will constantly grow weaker until not a vestige of their power remains in Ward 8."

The Republic has made the startling discovery that it was Martin M. Lomasney as a member of the redistricting committee, who was responsible for the gerrymander of the Boston senatorial districts. It has also discovered a schism in the Hendricks Club, and repeats the charges of betrayal of Democratic candidates by Ward 8 candidacy for Mayor as an instance.

"Belongs With Republicans."

Lomasney's political future, the Republic says, lies with the Republican party, making the following prediction:

"Martin will be on Beacon Hill next year, and in the Republican party, unless we miss our guess. There is no other place for him to go. He will try, of course, to get together the forces which were lined up with him last year. He will have no success here, no more than he had on election day, when he tried to induce them to follow the Frothingham standard.

"The Republicans will in all probability accept his aid, though they will make it evident at once that they do not wish to have him get too close."

Says They Will Choose "Comfort."

In black-faced type the Republic makes the following prediction regarding the outcome of Tuesday's primary battle between Kiley and Dixon:

"Edward W. Dixon will split Ward 8 on Tuesday. If the fight lasted a week longer Dixon would carry the ward, overwhelmingly. When the fight for Alderman takes place about a month hence the Hendricks Club will be torn asunder. History will be made every day from now on among the members of the Hendricks Club. They will have to choose between allegiance to a discredited leadership and comfort, and we think they will choose the latter. Martin M. Lomasney began his political career as an ally of the Republican party in Ward 8 when he secured the Republican nomination for Edward J. Donovan and Harrison D. Atwood, for the Legislature. Nothing is left for him now but to make his permanent abode with his first love."

MAYOR, JOGGED, FILES INCORPORATION OF THE REPUBLIC

In compliance with the demands of Commissioner of Corporations Trefry, John F. Fitzgerald, publisher of The Republic, a weekly journal, has filed at the State House the returns of the incorporation of the Republic Company. Mr. Fitzgerald is also well known outside the publishing circles as Mayor of Boston.

The Republic Company was recently incorporated under the convenient laws of the State of Maine. Its headquarters are at No. 191 Middle street, Portland.

According to the statutes, foreign corporations doing business in this State are required to file a statement of their incorporation with the Commissioner of Corporations. Mr. Fitzgerald forgot to attend to this little matter, it appears, and Mr. Trefry gently but firmly called his attention to his oversight. It also appears that a corporation may be fined five hundred dollars for forgetting this little detail.

In the report filed yesterday appears the names of several Massachusetts people as "directors." Cornelius G. Fitzgerald, a cousin of Publisher Fitzgerald, is the president of the company. He is in charge of the office of the publication at No. 15 School street. Edward L. Feeney is the clerk. He lives at No. 59 Robinson street, Dorchester. Here are some of the directors:

Ex-Senator Henry S. Fitzgerald, John J. Cadigan, James W. Roster, Dr. Francis J. Keaney, Patrick J. Dodd and J. J. Gallagher. All of these are close friends of teh publisher.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 22.—$43,000 cash and $110,000 in six-month notes were turned over to Receiver Earle of the Real Estate Trust Company yesterday by Joseph R. Wainwright, in settlement of a claim of $278,000 the company held against him.

WARS ON "L" MAN IN FIGHT FOR SENATE

Ex-Representative Clarke Sees Corporation Influence Over Opponent.

APPEALS IN 7TH DISTRICT

In his appeal to the Democrats of the Seventh Suffolk District for the nomination for State Senate former Representative William W. Clarke of No. 98 Calumet street declares that his opponent, John J. Butler, is in the employ of the Boston Elevated Railway. Mr. Clarke is after Butler with cartoons, red fire, brass bands, fireworks and open air rallies. He asks the Democrats of the district whether they want William W. Clarke or the Boston Elevated Railway to represent them. Mr. Clarke speaks to about 5,000 people every evening.

Mr. Clarke claims that he is the original John B. Moran man in his district, and was one of the first to indorse his candidacy for the governorship. He is also a champion of municipal ownership and a friend of the laboring class, as his 1904 record in the House of Representatives establishes.

On Side of Labor.

"In the House of Representatives in 1904 I voted for the Picketing bill, the Referendum, spoke and voted for Municipal Ownership, voted for the Overtime bill, for the Telephone and Telegraph Supervision bill and for the bill increasing compensation in case of death by negligence to $25,000," said Mr. Clarke to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

Now, Representative Butler has voted consistently in favor of all bills that champion the Boston Elevated, and backs all bills that are injurious to that system. He is a Boston Elevated hireling pure and simple.

"I have shown up Representative Butler. He is on the Boston Elevated payroll. He showed where he stood when he voted for three consecutive years against a bill that cars be equipped with lifting jacks.

Menace to Ownership.

"I'm running on a municipal ownership platform, and contend that an Elevated employe is dangerous to have in the Senate when the bill for the municipalizing of public utilities comes up. Butler ought to be defeated if only for that reason alone."

Besides being an ex-Representative, Mr. Clarke is a Spanish war veteran, having served in the Ninth Massachusetts Infantry, and is a Harvard Law School graduate of the '95 class.

CALLS DOCTOR UNDER THREAT

Under threat of criminal prosecution by neighbors, H. D. Follingsbee of Brookline, who had refused medical aid for Kendall, his seventeen-year-old son, who is suffering from a broken neck, preferring to have him treated by Christian Science, decided to call a doctor. Neighbors in Allerton and Bayside, Hull, held an indignation meeting and sent a committee, which notified Mr. Follingsbee of their decision. Drs. F. M. Allard and F. M. Richardson of Boston, who were called, ordered the boy removed to the Homeopathic Hospital, and he was taken there yesterday afternoon.

BLOW UP SUNKEN BOAT FOR $500,000

PASQUE ISLAND, Sept. 22.—An attempt is being made to blow up the steamer Trojan, the Boston and Philadelphia line boat which was sunk in collision last Spring near Cuttyhunk Island by the government gasoline boat Mary. The Trojan carried a cargo of silks, liquors and other goods, valued in all at $500,000. The steamer is owned by the Boston Towboat Company.

BOY STRIKERS WIN.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Sept. 22.—After closing three of their mills and throwing 1,200 employes out of work, the J. & P. Coates Thread Company yesterday yielded to the demands of their eighty striking back boys and granted them a 10 per cent. raise.

RICH MAN HIRES DETECTIVES TO KIDNAP GIRL

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—An amazing story of crime and persecution developed here yesterday when Mrs. Mary Smith, No. 3,525 La Salle street, called on the police for aid to find her niece, Mary Porter, seventeen years old, who disappeared from the Smith home Sunday morning. Mrs. Smith informed the police that Miss Porter had been kidnapped by detectives at the instance of a rich man living at Rutland, Vt., who caused the girl to leave her home there eighteen months ago.

This man was declared to have abducted the girl from her home in Rutland and conveyed her to Montreal. There, with the assistance of hospital attendants, he stole her child, a boy, whom the mother has not seen since, it is charged.

"After Mary disappeared from Rutland," said Mrs. Smith, "the police of every city in the country were looking for her for several months. When I found out that she was missing I went to Vermont and through a letter I found in one of her old gowns traced her to the hospital in Montreal. There I found that she was held practically a prisoner. I called on the police and eventually procured her release.

"I managed to elude half a dozen detectives who followed us everywhere in Montreal. We escaped them by leaving at night from an outside station. Shortly after our arrival in Chicago is was evident that we had been traced. There were one to three strange men about my house at all times. They have been constantly hovering about the neighborhood until last Sunday morning, when Mary disappeared. Then the men were gone."

CAPTURE RUFFIAN WHO CHASED GIRLS

QUINCY, Sept. 22.—The screams of his daughter as she and two companions, fled last night from a burly man who pursued them caused James H. Donovan of West Quincy to rush to the rescue, frightened the ruffian and chased him nearly a quarter of a mile before he captured him. At the police station he gave the name of Zacachini Luigi, said he was married and the father of four children.

SAY NON-UNION MEN WORK ON GILDED DOME

A conference will be held at the State House on Monday afternoon, when representatives of the Central Labor Union and other trades councils will call on Governor Guild to protest against the employment of non-union men in regilding the dome of the State House. This committee will be composed of Martin T. Joyce, president of the Central Labor Union; Charles E. Roeder, Gold Beaters' Union; Alderman Fred J. Kneeland, Painters' Union No. 11, and Harry Noble, business agent of the Painters' Union.

The contract for regilding the State House wos given to Nathaniel G. Phiney some days aga for $4,480. According to the statements made to-day by Harry Noble, the business agent of the Painters' Union, the men employed by the contractors are all non-union men.

"I canvassed Phinney's men about three weeks ago," said Mr. Noble to-day to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "and found that his employes were not union men. The other bidders for the contract of regilding the dome of the State House, Louis Perry & Co. and Cyrus C. Clark, have open shops and may have some union men in their employment. Unless some of the union men have gone to work for Pinney recently without notifying the union, he has no union men."

Then, too, I understand that the contract for regilding the dome was not advertised. I may be mistaken, but it seems to me that contracts like this should be secured by competition.

"What will be the outcome of the conference on Monday I am unable to say, but we shall use every effort to have Governor Guild countermand the contract and give it to a union man."

The Gold Beaters' Union is also interested in this controversy. There is a national strike of the union for higher wages and the support of their union by their shop foremen. The strike has been on for six weeks.

The Gold Beaters' Union of Boston say the gold leaf to be used on the dome of the State House is not union made.

"The labor organizations appointed a committee to see Governor Guild and myself a week or so ago, but I have not seen or heard anything from them," said Sergeant-at-Arms D. T. Remington of the State House to-day.

"When I saw that the dome needed a new coat of gold, I just sought out parties whom I knew to be capable and honest and gave the contract to the lowest bidder. Nathaniel G. Pinney got the contract, and it was agreed that Cabot gold twenty-three carat fine should be used."

BOILS A BOY WHILE SEEKING TO PLAY JOKE

LUBEC, Me., Sept. 22.—Plunged in a tank of boiling water by a practical joker, Wesley Meyers, a nine-year-old boy, lies at his home, his entire body parboiled and a mass of burns.

While Meyers and a number of other boys were playing in the packing room of a local sardine factory a youth eighteen years of age seized Meyers and held him over a tank containing boiling water, with the intention of frightening him.

The boy struggled to escape, and his tormentor lost his hold on the child, who fell into the water. The water was not more than three feet deep and Meyers was able to remain on his feet.

Although frightfully injured, physicians say he will recover.

TODAY 18 GIRLS SWIM RACE FOR AMERICAN CUP

Preliminary Heats Start at 2:30 and Winners Will Compete in Grand Final.

CHANCE FOR ALL TO SEE

To-day brings the BOSTON AMERICAN'S championship swimming race for girls of Greater Boston under twenty years of age.

Contestants and their friends will be gratified to hear that Peter S. McNally, the great swimmer and life-saver, will act as starter. This insures expert work at the starting launch. Mr. McNally has just returned from Europe and has kindly consented to give the contestants the signals.

Captain E. J. De Freitas, of City Point Life Saving Station, will act as referee. Judges at the finish line will be M. F. Meagher, ex-instructor at the L street bath, and Dr. E. W. Crockett.

The race is for a beautiful silver challenge cup offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN to decide the championship. The cup has been on exhibition at the sporting goods house of Wright & Ditson, No. 344 Washington street.

The eighteen duly entered contestants are all ready. Their friends are all enthusiasm. Interest in the race has been on the increase since it was announced. It is expected that the contest will be viewed by thousands.

Miss Lelia Hemmen of South Boston was entered, but she sent notice to the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Swimming Editor early to-day that she would be unable to compete. This leaves eighteen contestants.

Swimmers Report at 1:30.

The race will be at City Point, South Boston, over a quarter-mile course, finishing at the boat landing of Clarence W. Stevens, adjoining the public landing. Notices were mailed yesterday by the Swimming Editor of the BOSTON AMERICAN, notifying all contestants to report in swimming costume at Stevens' landing not later than 1:30 this afternoon.

Those entered are:

Lillie Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston, seventeen years.

Anna Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston, sixteen years.

Catherine Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston, fourteen years.

Madeline Berlo, No. 9 G street, South Boston, eleven years.

Mary McDonough, No. 564 East Third street, South Boston, seventeen years.

Margaret McDonough, No. 564 East Third street, South Boston, fifteen years.

Rose Pitenoff, No. 337 Freeport street, Dorchester, eleven years.

Mayrose Kelley, No. 13 Centre avenue, Dorchester, fourteen years.

Anna Hennessy, corner Eighth and Dorchester streets, South Boston, thirteen years.

Katherine Fonseca, No. 18 Heddy street, Winthrop, sixteen years.

Rose Anderson, No. 30 Wordsworth street, East Boston, thirteen years.

Alsie Aykroyd, No. 20 Wordsworth street, East Boston, twelve years.

Annie O'Connor, No. 20 Locust street, South Boston, nineteen years.

Annie Moriarity, No. 521 East Sixth street, South Boston, fifteen years.

Marion Colville, No. 167 M street, South Boston, eighteen years.

May Burke, No. 230 Sumner street, East Boston, thirteen years.

Florence Lagassa, No. 819 E street, South Boston, thirteen years.

Trixie Hickey, No. 91 Q street, South Boston, fifteen years.

The first heat will not be called until 2:30 p. m., but some time is needed to have the contestants draw lots for heats and to make other final arrangements. Winners of preliminary heats will qualify for the final heat, to decide the championship.

Fine View from Beach.

The start will be off the big power launch of Walter Kneeland, "The Rosebud." This launch is one of the biggest in Dorchester Bay and easily carries sixty people. It will be anchored at the starting point, one-fourth mile from the finish line running between the judges boats near Stevens' landing. As the landing does not face square toward the course, a finish line will be stretched out close to it, marking the exact finish. The course will be about 100 yards from a parrallel to to City Point beach, from which a complete view of the race can be obtained.

Proprietor L. A. Bova, of Head House, City Point, has arranged to have a band concert during the afternoon hours.

After the preparations—now comes the race itself. You girls have disputed about who was the champion. The BOSTON AMERICAN gives a prize and arranges a race. It's up to the girls.

U. S. INTERVENTION IN CUBA SEEMS CERTAIN

THE FORM IT SHALL TAKE IS THE QUESTION NOW AT HAVANA.

HAVANA, Sept. 22.—The big question now forming in Cuba is not whether the United States Government shall intervene to restore peace, but in what form the intervention will be offered.

Secretary Taft has received statements from all factions that indicate that no agreement can possibly be reached that would leave the island government wholly in Cuban hands. American officials, hitherto optimistic over the prospects of securing peace and restoring the Palma government, are now convinced that only the good offices of Uncle Sam can save the island from continued turmoil and uncertain political future.

Taft has received statements from Capote, representing the government's view of the situation, and from Zayas, setting out the attitude of the rebels, and none give hope of compromise.

To Ignore Both Factions.

Officials of the Palma government threaten that if the American representatives order new elections the entire responsibility of conducting the government temporarily and managing the elections will be thrown on their hands.

One proposed solution to the difficulty is to continue the Palma government, with assurances to the revolutionists that if possible their rights will hereafter be fully observed. If this proposition is accepted by the rebels, the consummation of the plan would require an American direction of the Palma administration.

Secretary Taft is about ready to ignore both factions and appoint a commission of natives to devise a solution, to be enforced by Americans.

Commerce Is Suffering.

The news of General Funston's coming is resented by some of the Cubans, who say that he left the army of liberation, surrendered to Spain and departed from the country. A number aver that Funston was a deserter. Funston's friends say that he simply left the service.

Island traffic is nearly suspended, and commercial interests are suffering greatly.

The danger of clashes has been recognized for several days, and Taft has given notice that if a battle occurs the result will be very serious, and will undoubtedly mean immediate occupation by American military forces.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

A report was received at last night's meeting of Stationary Engineers' Union No. 16 from Frank B. Monaghan, delegate to the convention of engineers in Milwaukee, which closed last Wednesday, stating that the convention had given the hoisting and portable engineers absolute jurisdiction over road roller engineers, and all stationary engineers' locals were ordered to transfer any road roller engineers over at once.

All but three or four of the road roller engineers have been members of Boston Hoisting and Portable Engineers' Union No. 4 for some time and the others who are in Union No. 16 will be transferred at once. It was stated that Arthur M. Huddell, president of Boston Hoisting and Portable Engineers' Union No. 4 and also State president, was elected second international vice-president.

ROOFERS BOOM ROBINSON.

The officers of Roofers' Union No. 17 met last night to further assist the candidacy of the union's secretary, Richard H. Robinson, for the Republican nomination for senator from the ninth Suffolk district. Mr. Robinson is one of the oldest and most active trades unionists in the city, having served on many committees appointed by the union during the past to bring about reforms and which were successful in many instances.

MINERS SEEKING OFFICE.

There are five miners who are candidates for Congress under the American Federation of Labor plan for the entrance of trades unionists into politics. They are: W. B. Wilson, national secretary-treasurer, of Blossburg, Pa.; John Walker, vice-president of the Illinois district; T. D. Nichols, Scranton, Pa., president of the first anthracite district; W. H. Dettry, Hazelton, Pa., president of the seventh anthracite district, and John Fahey, president of the ninth anthracite district.

In addition, C. F. Gilden, board member from District No. 7, has been nominated for one of the State offices by the Socialists. Patrick Fitzsimmons, of Olyphant, near Scranton; Miles Dougherty, Shamokin, national board member of the Ninth district; Richard Gilbert, secretary of District No. 2, Clearfield, and Patrick Finney, of Bruceton, Pa., are in the race for the Pennsylvania House of Representatives.

GRANITE CUTTERS ELECT.

Granite Cutters' National Union, Boston Branch, has elected the following delegates to the Boston Central Labor Union: D. C. Sullivan, Jeremiah Mahoney, William McCartney, Michael Caragg, Michael Maher, John Corray and Alexander Ray. Michael Turbett has been elected treasurer in place of H. E. Hunter, who resigned owing to leaving for Los Angeles, Cal.

LABOR NOTES.

Building Trades Council will elect officers to-morrow.

To-morrow the State executive board of the Engineers' Unions will meet in Engineers' Hall, No. 994 Washington street, when several important matters will be submitted.

The Second District Council of Massachusetts Electrical Workers meets to-morrow at 10 a. m., at No. 419 Main street, Worcester.

The advisory board of Bricklayers' Union No. 3 has called a specially notified meeting for next Monday night in Caledonian Hall, No. 45 Eliot street, when First International Vice-President Thomas R. Preece of Chicago is expected to be present and address the members.

EX-MILLIONAIRE GETS APPLAUSE

Rufus Hatch, the much-heralded ex-millionaire amateur, was the feature at the Columbia last night and favored the big audience with songs and recitations. Amid a typhoon of commotion Rufus appeared in a game which he said Shakespeare scribbled, but as the applause drowned his every word it was impossible to verify his statement. Mr. Hatch made a most pronounced hit, even if he did not succeed in landing a prize. Elsie Russell won first money last night, the Kiplings came in second and Edie McFadden got third prize.

KILLS HIMSELF ON SETTEE IN PUBLIC GARDEN

Well-Dressed Man Destroys Every Clue to His Identity and Uses Revolver.

THOUGHT TO BE WEALTHY

Efforts are being made to-day by the police to identify the man who committed suicide at 10:40 o'clock last night by shooting himself in the right temple in the Public Garden.

The man had evidently premeditated taking his life, for every effort had been made to destroy whatever might lead to his identification. The hat band from his black derby hat had been torn out, tags on his clothes removed, and there were no cards or letters of any kind in the pockets.

His clothes were made of excellent material, and he was apparently a man in good circumstances, for his body was well nourished and cared for.

Dr. H. D. Osgood, of Waltham street, Lexington, comes to-day to view the body to determine whether it is his father or not. The doctor's father has been missing since yesterday, and he comes in answer to a communication from the Boston police.

No one saw the man fire the fatal shot, but Patrolman Palmer of the Back Bay station was in the Garden at the time and heard it. He rushed to the man's side, but it was too late, for he died instantly.

The ambulance was called and conveyed the body to the City Hospital Morgue.

The body was that of a man about sixty years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall and weighing about 150 pounds. He was partly bald, with a closely cropped gray Van Dyke beard. He had a full set of false teeth.

He wore a light gray suit, black shoes and derby and underclothing of the finest texture.

BID ROOSEVELT TO A. O. H. FETE

President Roosevelt, Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., Coadjutor Archbishop William H. O'Connell and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald are among those invited to the banquet to be tendered by the men of Greater Boston in the Hotel Somerset on the evening of October 14 to National President Matthew Cummings of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in honor of Cummings's recent election to office.

Notices have been sent out that the number of seats will be limited to 500, requiring early application for tickets. Application should be made to Charles F. Riordan, secretary of the banquet committee, No. 5 Globe building.

EAST INDIANS FAIL TO PASS HARVARD EXAMS

Young Men Will Now Try for Entrance to Columbia University.

WILL CONTINUE STRUGGLE

Amar and Gopal Singh, the East Indian young men who came here to enter Harvard University, have been denied admission by the faculty because they failed to pass the rigid entrance examinations.

The young men, though without resources and exiles in a foreign land, are determined to continue their struggle for an advanced education and a livelihood.

They come from the famous Punjaub district in India. Both attended the Punjaub University, but were compelled to leave the country on account of difficulty with the English Government through their championing the Boers in the Boer war. They came to Seattle, then to Minneapolis and finally landed in Cambridge, hoping to enter Harvard.

Having failed there, they have gone to New York city to try to enter Columbia.

Dixon's Reply to Kiley

"I have read your letter challenging me to a joint debate. It seems to me that you have a great deal of assurance, you a Republican, I a Democrat, to challenge me to a debate on our fitness for a Democratic nomination.

"It is easy to see that you are looking for an opportunity to obtain some standing as a Democrat, but I refuse to recognize you as such. You supported Republican Frothingham for Mayor. You turned a strong Democratic precinct in Ward 8 over to the Republican candidate last December.

"If you had your way hundreds of deserving laborers in City Hall would have been turned into the streets in the same manner as was done by your friend and the former Mayor, Thomas N. Hart.

"You are in touch with the Republican organization even now in an effort to secure the Republican nomination for Senator after your defeat on Tuesday next.

"I thank you for your kindness in offering to pay all the expenses. You certainly are able to do this because of the political practices which you have employed during your political career.

"Though the law expressly forbids members of the city government taking part in contracts, you have been known to have personally interceded with every Mayor and every Superintendent of Streets in Boston during the past ten years for contracts, and you have been successful.

"The records show over $100,000 paid to your concern. Your boldness in putting yourself before the eyes of thousands of citizens of Boston personally supervising the work is equalled only by your brazenness in now challenging me to a joint debate to secure a Democratic nomination within six months of your ruthless betrayal of the Democratic candidate for Mayor.

"Four times now you have audaciously knifed Democratic nominees. You knifed John H. Sullivan, a Democrat, for Peter Morrison, the Republican; you knifed James A. Gallivan, the Democrat, for John P. Dore, the Republican; you knifed John P. Manning, the Democrat, for Charles Dolan, the Republican; you knifed John F. Fitzgerald, the Democrat, for Louis A. Frothingham, the Republican.

"With this record, no man with a spark of decency would dare show his face in a Democratic gathering. I suggest that you challenge the other Republican candidate."

O'CONNELL REBUKED AGAIN

The Democratic Voters of the 10th District Refuse to be Fooled by Him.

Read the True Story of the Employers' Liability Bill.

Affidavit of Edward M. Shanley, the author of the Employers' Liability Bill, the man who drew the bill:

I, Edward M. Shanley of Boston, Massachusetts, joint author with Senator Taylor of the "Employers' Liability Act," so called, hereby make oath that Edward L. Logan, in the Senate of this year, worked, spoke and voted for the enactment of said statute.
EDWARD M. SHANLEY.

Boston, Sept. 20, 1906.
Personally appeared the above-named Edward M. Shanley and made oath that the above statements by him subscribed are true.
DUDLEY A. DORE, Justice of the Peace.

Senator Daniel D. Mahoney, former president of the Holyoke Central Labor Union and colleague of Senator Edward L. Logan, says:

"The statement that Senator Logan opposed the Employers' Liability Bill is absolutely false. Senator Logan voted and spoke for the bill on the floor of the Senate."

Representative M. F. Phelan of Lynn, a member of the judiciary committee, before whom the Employers' Liability Bill was argued, says:

"To charge Senator Logan with being against the Employers' Liability Bill is an outrageous falsehood. As a member of the committee of the judiciary Senator Logan fought for the bill, dissented when the committee reported adversely against the bill and advocated the passage of the bill from the floor of the Senate."

Now, Mr. Joseph F. O'Connell I demand that you, in the interest of honesty and honor in public life, retract the false charges you have made against me.

The Tenneyites are now playing first-class ball, and another victory is expected to be chalked up to their credit to-day in their second battle in their series with the Pirates.

Lindaman is booked to do the slinging for the Bostons to-day. He was the man who pitched the first victory against the Cubs, and incidentally made them look like a lot of second-raters.

Mike Lynch, the favorite pitcher of the Pirates here in the Hub, is the man who Manager Clarke of the visitors says he will send to the rubber to-day.

The locals are playing a fast all-round game these days. Their work in the field and at the bat is A1. The pitching staff is in good shape, and many more wins should come to the credit of the local bunch before the final curtain falls for the season of 1906.

Yesterday's game was an easy conquest for the Hub bunch. Even with a catcher (Brown) playing second base, and Howard covering short, the home club won to the tune of 5 to 1.

The patched line-up was caused by the absence of Bridwell, who is suffering from a sore leg, and which may keep him out of the battle for three or four days.

Gus Dorner was in the box for the Bostons and he pitched a very steady game, the clever Pirates only making five hits off his delivery.

By the way the visitors opened up on Dorner in the first inning it looked as though they would win in a romp. The first man up, Hallman, cracked out a three-bagger, and later on scored, and the fans sat back in their seats expecting to see the Smoke City tribe win, as is their usual custom against the Beaneaters.

Vic Willis, the elongated one, last season with the Boston team, faced his old team mates and was batted rather freely.

One of the pleasing features of the game was the work of Jack Cameron, the South End recruit, in left field for the victors. Besides fielding in excellent fashion, he did effective work with the stick, hammering out two corking singles.

Howard was also another strong factor in the victory of the Bostons. He batted in fine form, and his fielding was fairly creditable.

Harry C. Pulliam, president of the National League, who attended the game, tried out a new umpire named Clarence Supple, from South Framingham, and although he was up against it in the matter of close plays, he got along fairly well.

Marked Change Made by New Rules

FOOTBALL AT HARVARD

One of the marked differences in the Harvard football practice this year is the absence of talk about such and such a player in the graduate schools or a wonderful freshman to be tried out.

Preparatory school stars who were about to enter Harvard were much sought after, and their appearance created quite a stir and their development carefully watched.

Now the situation is entirely changed and both freshmen and graduates are ineligible, making it encumbent upon the student body to come to the rescue of Coach Reid and offer their services.

This action of the faculty in decreasing the field of material for the coaches to deal with may have serious results for making Harvard pre-eminent on the gridiron this Fall, but it will not necessarily have that effect, and as Yale is under the same restrictions both rivals are on an equal footing.

The movement is sure to create greater enthusiasm with the body of students whose chances of making the team in the past has been prevented by the presence of older men from the graduate school, whose longer gridiron experience gave them preference. It would seem that under the circumstances that more football material will be molded at Harvard, and will be available and count just as much as that kind which "comes back for an extra year" to finish up, but more especially to play on the team.

"I look for more injuries from football this year than ever before," said a well-known Harvard athlete who has been a member of the Crimson eleven in the past.

"The reason for it is apparent after watching the new features of the changed rules. For instance, where there will be so much punting and short kicking the tackling in the open when a player has no protection and himself focusing his attention on the ball will be handled in a position with no chance to meet the impact and contract his body when being thrown. The player catching the ball and the ball will be in the air much more than it ever was with the new onside rule, allowing the whole team to charge down on him, will tend to increase the number of injuries rather than decrease them. The old game allowed some chance to collect oneself when about to be tackled, but with the premium put on deception in fooling the other opponents on short kicks in order to regain the ball the individual who must suddenly bear the brunt of the defence by receiving the ball, will be lucky to get away without being hurt. He will have to reach for the ball, straining every effort to secure it, for once it touches the ground the opponents will have to be inside after its possession."

This matter of possible injuries has been voiced by nearly all football men who are well acquainted with the new features of the game. While generally agreeing that the game itself will have some features which will tend to make it more interesting for the spectators, who have always found trouble in following the player with the ball on account of the close formations, the susceptibility to bruises will, they think, be of more common occurrence owing to the more open style allowing of fiercer tackling on the protected player.

Individual brilliancy will have a greater opportunity to shine than ever, and the natural player will be in his element and football brains will receive their just due in all the games seen on the gridiron this Fall. Head work—not the kind for butting down stone walls, but the species which sees openings in the enemy's defence—will be the factor which will supercede the brute strength of the old days of flying wedges and mass plays.

It would seem that the opportunities for single-handed endeavor was infinitesimal under the new regime and the player who possesses the qualities of wits combined with superior athletic skill will become invaluable to a team.

Harvard is taking up a lot of time at present in practising a perfect system of passing as that element will be a prominent factor this season and the method pursued is using both hands in making the pass. It is probably one of the most awkward positions for throwing an object that could be devised. Quickness in handling the ball under such conditions is imperative or disaster is sure to follow.

THREE BIG BILLIARD MATCHES ARRANGED

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—The lovers of billiards are assured excellent sport with the closing of the Summer. Three championship matches among the professionals are now under way, and one tournament between the shortstops has also been arranged, which will make the coming season the most important in billiard affairs in many years.

The first big match will be for the 18-inch two-shots-in championship, and the contestants will be George F. Slosson, the winner of the notable 18.2 tourney in Madison Square Garden last April, and George Sutton, of Chicago, whose big runs and good averages created astonishment among the followers of the green cloth.

Sutton, who now runs a billiard academy in Chicago, made a whirlwind finish in that tournament, and he has always been under the impression that had he obtained a better start he would have won first prize.

Willie Hoppe, the 18-1 champion, was a bit tardy after Slosson had won the 18.2 tournament, and Sutton got in first with a challenge for the emblem, much to the disappointment of the youth, who had been beaten by the "Student" in the tournament, but who turned the tables on his rival in the Chicago games. The Chicago tournament, however, did not involve the championship, and, while Hoppe won out handsomely, still he acquired no titles.

The boy, however, determined to be alert this Fall, has deposited a forfeit of $250 with the donors of the emblem, which he accompanied by a challenge to the winner of the Slosson and Sutton match. This insures two great matches for the 18—2 emblem.

Hoppe has planned a busy campaign. He is challenged by Jake Schaefer for the 18—1 balk-line world's championship emblem, won last Winter from Maurice Vignaux in France, and later successfully defended against Slosson. Hoppe and Schaefer have their forfeits up. The match will take place in November and will follow the Slosson-Sutton contest.

The young champion's admirers are confident he will be able to capture both emblems this Winter, although it is admitted that if he were pitted against Sutton the Chicagoan might be expected to do something sensational in the way of big runs and averages.

The shortstops, those players who are just short of the first division, are also to have a challenge emblem to contest for, and the opening tournament will take place early this Winter.

This will bring together such good men as Tom Gallagher, Edward McLaughlin, Albert Cutler, Harry Cline of Philadelphia and some others in what should prove to be a very interesting tournament.

FINE PRIZES FOR ATHLETES

Amateur athletes will have a chance to compete for fine prizes at the Brockton Fair, Oct. 5, when gold watches will be awarded to first and second in each event and silver time pieces for thirds.

The events are 100-yard dash, 200-yard dash, 440-yard dash, three broad jumps, pole vault, running high jump, running broad jump, putting 16-pound shot, 440-yard dash (novice), open team race, one mile (scratch), team race open to high schools (one mile). Entries close September 27 with Horace A. Keith, No. 26 Pink [illegible], Mass. Entry fee 25 cents for each event.

SWEET MARIE MAKES RECORD

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 22.—Sweet Marie, in front of the largest crowd ever gathered at the Columbus track, yesterday was successful in not only lowering her own record of 2:03¾, but in establishing a new trotting mark for the course. Her mile in 2:02 is a quarter of a second better than the time Cresceus made here in 1901, when he became champion trotter of the world.

SOMERVILLE GAME OFF.

Owing to the inability of the Somerville team to secure Broadway Field, the game scheduled for this afternoon between Somerville and the Somerville Professionals has been called off.

READVILLE PLAN OF ONLY THREE HEATS FOR EACH EVENT A BIG SUCCESS

BY EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

Shortening of the light harness horse races has come to stay. The day of the old three-in-five heat affairs, with its numerous postponements to the following day to find the winner is a matter of history only. Nothing shows this more conclusively than the recent meeting at Readville.

Racing is supposed by the public to mean a test of speed between several horses. The old system of three-in-five was foreign to the name of racing. It was solely an endurance test. The latter is very properly delicated to automobiles. In this machinery can hear the strain, but horses are flesh and blood, and public opinion prevails that they be used as such. Amusement cannot be had in seeing a field of horses struggle along heat after heat for six to even ten heats, finishing through the stretch staggering from pure exhaustion. Human sympathy for the animal will not permit of such abuse to "man's best friend."

Success at Readville.

Under the Readville plan of three heats in an event and each a race, the public turned out in such numbers that, despite the fact there was no betting, the meeting was made a financial success. It is the public, too, that in the future the success of trotting meetings must be looked to.

Then, too, on the return to Boston from the track to listen to the persons near were enough to convince any fair-minded man how popular the sport had been. From the time the word was given it was a case of racing till the wire was reached. The result was many world's records were broken. Yes, during the Readville meeting more new records were made than ever before in a single meeting in the history of the turf.

Not by any means are all the trainers and owners opposed to the Readville method of racing. It is safe to say that quite a majority preferred it to the old three-in-five.

Among the number of veteran drivers who favored it was Gil Curry. He declared before a coterie of horsemen that it had come to stay, but in years to come would be improved on by making the races all dash events, similar to the runners. "It is one step in the right direction," he averred, and not one in the party contradicted the statement. Curry's remarks were only in line with others heard in the same direction.

Have Neglected the Public.

But to suppose the trainers and owners were opposed to the plan. Race track managers have too long catered to their wishes and neglected the public point of view. It is shown that the track that hangs up the money in purses can make the conditions, and the trainers and owners will enter their horses. They have the horses to race, and the track gives them the opportunity. It is proven a cinch the horses will be entered.

With the public entertained the gate receipts will make a meeting profitable, even without betting, but under the three-in-five horse endurance struggle the gamblers are entertained, possibly some of the trainers and owners who follow the pool box, but the attendance is much smaller.

Three races in each event, racing from the drop of the hat, sensational speed and beating of the world's race records. How in the wisdom of things can a combination of that sort be thrown over by a handful of mournful devotees of the past!

NAPS WILL GET FINE TWIRLER IN LIEBHART

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 21.—In years gone by the South has sent many good men to big league camps for their initial tryouts against the best batters and fielders in baseball realms, but never has she sent a better man than the German pitcher, Liebhart, who goes from Memphis to Cleveland, and never has sent a man who looked as much the big leaguer as this Liebhart.

To make the going even with Liebhart in the box, it is almost a fair proposition to make him pitch the first game of a double-header and then send him in again for the second.

Just a summary of his work is interesting, to express it very mildly:

Liebhart has pitched forty-three games this season, has won thirty-three of them and lost the other ten, not working in a single tie. He has participated in five double-headers, three with Shreveport, one with Atlanta and one with Memphis and Nashville, and the last named, the tail enders, the so-called despised Finns, was the only club to take so much as a single game from him.

BAY STATE AUTOISTS RUN TO WORCESTER

It was almost 10 o'clock this morning before the members of the Bay State Automobile Association and their guests who were to make the run to Worcester were able to start from the club headquarters on Dartmouth street. The sky looked threatening and a cloud of dust spread a thick film of gray over the occupants of the motors before they got under way. It is probable that these conditions, combined with the Vanderbilt elimination races, were responsible for the small number which started, for only five machines were in line. Many went direct to Worcester, however, without stopping at the clubhouse.

There will be several hundred at the Worcester Oval to-day to witness the annual Gymkhana of the Worcester club. A programme of ten events has been arranged and many out of town organizations will send delegations. Springfield, Providence and many other cities along the line have sent word that they are on the way. A parade through the streets leads off the afternoon sports. The events are arranged to permit the greatest scope for the drivers, the object being to show the possibilities of the automobile under all kinds of conditions.

The Boston contingent will return this evening after dinner at the Worcester Club.

Among those who started were: G. L. Lighthorn, E. P. Kennedy, Secretary J. Fortescue and A. E. Mills in a Welch car; Miss E. Campbell, Miss White, W. R. Sherman and L. F. Hawley in a Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. G. M. McNear and J. Charles in a Rambler; B. F. Binney, J. N. Thompson, Mr. Jacobson and C. C. Munson in a Corbin; Mr. Kendall, Fred Ayers, G. W. Campbell and Mr. Lounsbury in a Corbin; Mr. and Mrs. Girdley, Ralph Girdley, Herbert Girdley and Miss Ethel Girdley in a Stevens-Durey.

NOW TENNEY IS AFTER NATS

Captain Fred Tenney of the Bostons and Roy Thomas of the Philadelphia Nationals are engineering a deal to buy the Boston National Club. A well-known business man is interested with them. It probably will be definitely decided within a week whether they will close the deal.

LYALL DEFEATS DICK KIMBALL

The defeat of Richard Kimball of the Chestnut Hill G. C., who made such a remarkable showing in the recent Western championship tournament, when he represented the Glen Echo Club, by G. H. Lyall, the former interscholastic champion, was the feature of the second day's play of the open tournament at the Woodland Golf Club yesterday afternoon. This morning T. Briggs, Lexington, will meet J. G. Anderson, Woodland; and J. E. Kedian, Woodland, will meet G. H. Lyall, Bellevue, in the semi-final round of the scratch match play, and G. H. Jennings, Barre, Vt., will meet W. E. Ingalls, Salem, and H. F. McNeal, Brae Burn, will meet A. M. Lane, Woodland, in the semi-final round of the handicap match play. The finals will also be played, and this afternoon there will be an eighteen-hole competition for all players.

Notes of the Harness Horses

Some are pointing to Nutboy's career on the turf and saying it is fortunate that his erratic, wild, ungovernable character carried him along to his eighth and ninth years before he was called on for supreme effort, thus harking back to Hiram Woodruff's views of forty years ago. He said: "I never knew of an animal that came to maturity early and lasted long."

* * *

The fourth of Todd's get to beat 2:20 as two-year-olds was Wilkerson, that worked two miles over the Lexington, Ky., track in 2:19 and 2:17¾ recently. Todd is, indeed, a wonder in getting early speed.

* * *

The work of S. Walter Wales in the intercity matinee at Peabody was most commendable. In three hours he started in thirty-seven heats, and in no one of them was there a cause for criticism. Head and head were the horses when they got the word. Mr. Wales has rare ability for the position of starting judge in matinee events.

* * *

When any of the members in the Dorchester Driving Club get in a hole with their horses and find it impossible for them to win, it is the custom to call on Ed Haddock to pull the chestnuts out of the fire. So frequently has he done this in the past that now many are calling him the "McHenry" of the club. But Ed can drive a horse well.

* * *

Did George A. French get cold feet? That is the question asked when he did not take his trotter to Peabody. The Dorchester delegation counted on India Panis to capture one of the events, and his not showing up was a keen disappointment to all.

* * *

It is reported that the crack half-mile pacer Frank Monkum, 2:04, has gone lame, and will probably not start again this season. His stable mate, Harry L., 2:07¼, is counted to take his place.

* * *

Jimmie Brady has been given the two-year-old sister of Gay Bingen, 2:12¼, to train for the futurity races. She is the property of Fred F. L. Lee, West Springfield, Mass., and is named Gaiety Lee.

* * *

Dorcas H., 2:09¾, that was brought from the West by W. H. Gentner, Belfast, Me., to race in the free-for-alls in his State, met with an injury in shipment which is liable to keep her from the races this year. Mr. Gentner has had rare good luck with his other horses.

* * *

Bingen, 2:06¼, is making a great showing with his get this season, as to date six have entered the 2:30 list; three gained reduced records, two of the number going into the 2:10 list, while one of his daughters has produced a newcomer.

* * *

Tom Sharkey added to his racing stable recently by buying the trotting mare Lily Wilkes, 2:15¼. Those who know believe she will prove a most useful addition to his string of campaigners.

GLAZE, STAHL'S CHOICE BERNHARD FOR LAJOIE

BATTING ORDER.

BOSTON.	CLEVELAND.
Hoey, l.f.	Jackson, l.f.

Armbruster, c.	Bemis, c.
Glaze, p.	Bernhard, p.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 22.—To-day marks the final appearance here of the season of the Boston Americans. The Nap victories over the visitors make Lajoie more hopeful of winning the pennant. He now sees a small chance and with the five thousand offered by the club owners as an extra inducement the manager as well as the players are striving hard for every game. To-day's battle will be hard fought.

The former champions will play the Stars at Sandusky, O., Sunday. The Stars are one of the best semi-professional teams in the State. Barry likely will be used.

Glaze and Bernhard are the pitching selections for this afternoon. Manager Stahl is anxious to annex the game to offset partly the double defeat handed to his team on Thursday.

Lee F. Hencock, baseball writer of the News, pays this compliment to the Boston Americans in his gossip:

"They are out there working for every game they can win. Even as they took no unfair advantages when they were in the lead, just so they overlook no opportunities when they are at the bottom, and every game they can win by fair, square, sportsmanlike playing goes into the records of their credit."

Each team scored an easy victory yesterday. In both games the pitcher of the winning team proved a mystery to his opponent. Winter pitched the first game for Boston, was hit freely, and the game went to the locals, 5 to 1. Lajoie scored the first run for his own team in the second [illegible] and were not to be headed after that. Buck Freeman, way down in the batting list, drove in four of the Pilgrims' nine runs.

In the second game Townsend was the slab ornament for Cleveland and Cy Young, invincible, appeared for the visitors. There was nothing doing on either side until the sixth. Then Townsend decided to try a few close ones on Buck. To open Stahl got the only pass of the day. Grimshaw tried to sacrifice, but singled. Chick was held on third by Turner, who threw out Chadbourne. Morgan got to third by having his manager run down. Grimshaw was perched on third—then Freeman appeared and clouted the ball mightily, scoring Grim and Morgan. In the eighth Grim started off with a three bagger, scoring on Chad's hit. The latter scored on Morgan's out and Freeman's single.

HEAT INTERFERES WITH YALE'S FOOTBALL WORK

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 22.—Yale football players this noon closed their first week's work with a light morning practice. No scrimmaging was taken and none will be held till next week. The kickers were told that they could take a couple of days' rest, and they left the city for a visit till Monday afternoon with friends in the State and in New York. No afternoon practice was scheduled for to-day.

Some of the players have dropped weight, notably for three or four days because of the excessive heat. Prostrations would have followed the practice but for the fact that the coaches have cut out work because of the high temperature. In spite of the caution to have the drill as late in the afternoon as possible and to make it short and split up by frequent rests, the players have fairly wilted before the blazing sun. Yale football players never before faced such an exasperating first week's practice.

The coaches got hold of a schedule which stated that a game was scheduled between the Springfield Training School and the Amherst Agricultural College for to-day, and they planned to run up to Springfield and see how the new rules would work. They learned that the report of the game was a mistake and called the trip off.

The week's practice closed with every veteran varsity player back. Field Coach Lydig Hoyt, who has been in Europe all Summer, has arrived in New York, and will be here Monday when the practice begins next week. Howard Jones, the crack end, has a bad knee and limps a little, and his brother, Tad Jones, is still suffering from a sprained ankle. Both will get little work for two or three weeks.

Quarterback Veeder is being tried for quarterback. He played the position at Andover three years ago, but has been halfback ever since he came to Yale. His shift is the most significant change since the candidates reported. Veeder was the best place kicker on the squad last year and is just the man needed for short quarterback punts over the rush line.

The coaches have been searching for a new end to fill the shoes of Captain Tom Shevlin. They have selected Bobby Burch of last year's freshman eleven, for the present. He was one of the best quarter-milers in Yale last year and is very fast, although light.

Three new coaches are expected next week, Ned Glass and George Goss, both guards, and George Chadwick, halfback. Goss and Glass are living in Connecticut and will coach the eleven much this season.

BARRETT WILL JOIN "CHICKS"

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 22.—Word was received here yesterday from Outfielder Jimmy Barrett, who has been playing for some time with the Rochester Eastern League team, after having been out of major league baseball for several months because of a bad knee, that he has signed a two-year contract with the Boston American League team. Barrett says his knee has entirely recovered and that he is himself again.

BIG YACHT PLANNED.

George Lawley has returned from New York with an order for a big steel three-masted auxiliary yacht. The new boat is from the plans of Clinton H. Crane, and she is for a member of the New York Yacht Club. She is the largest auxiliary sailing yacht yet built on this side of the water, and is five feet longer than the schooner Atlantic.

COOK BOOK CONTEST NOW OPEN TO EVERY MANNER OF RECIPES

Free-for-All Race for Housewives Has Begun

DEAR housewives! kind housewives! PLEASE don't send the Economy Editor any more recipes for "putting up" preserves and pickles!

If all the good preserving recipes received during the past week were to be printed it would take the whole of this page every day for many weeks.

Other recipes are now wanted. Pick out the one or two dishes on which you pride yourself and send the recipes along. Pies, cakes, desserts, meats, fish—anything is in order now.

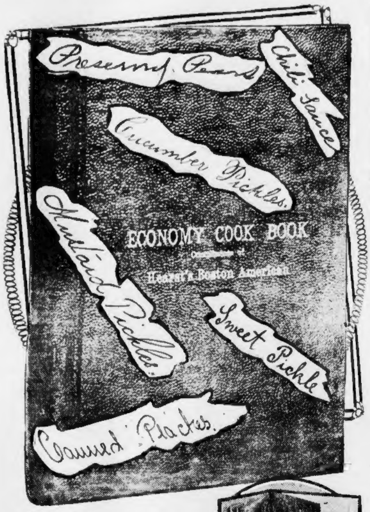
Be sure your recipe is true and tried. Tell us the secret of your success with your favorite goody. Give us your own recipe. Don't try to copy from books. Tell us where you fail and how you succeed.

If you have sent in a recipe, don't be discouraged. It may appear yet. When it is printed you will receive a copy of the BOSTON AMERICAN'S Economy Cook Book. It's a commonsense book, just like the recipes. It's a blank book of 120 pages, in which you can paste chosen recipes.

It is substantially bound in heavy oilcloth, so it will stand kitchen wear and tear without damage. There is a ruled index of writing paper.

IT'S JUST WHAT HOUSEWIVES HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR FOR YEARS.

Send along your favorite recipe today. Address Economy Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street.



Photograph of a copy of the "Economy Cook Book" which is given to the writer of every recipe printed.

SWEET PICKLED PEARS

BOIL peck pears until soft. Make a syrup of 2 quarts vinegar, 6 pounds sugar, 2 large tablespoons each of cinnamon, clove and allspice tied in a bag. Put pears in and cook a few minutes.

MRS W. C. ABBOTT,
No. 73 Avon street, Somerville.

DELICIOUS PICKLE

EIGHT quarts of chopped cabbage, four quarts green tomatoes sliced, twenty onions sliced, one-half ounce of tumeric, one ounce of celery seed, one ounce of black pepper, one teaspoon of cayenne, one ounce of ginger, one-half pound of white mustard seed, one pound of brown sugar, one-half cup of salt, four quarts of vinegar. Mix all together, boil for one hour, then pour into a jar. MRS. J. H. McNAIR.
No. 293 Tremont street, Boston.

CHOW-CHOW

HERE is a tomato recipe which is tried and true, and we find it excellent: One-half bushel green tomatoes, one dozen onions, one dozen green peppers. Chop fine and sprinkle over all a pint of salt. Let it stand over night, then drain off all the brine. Cover with vinegar and cook slowly one hour. Drain again and pack in a jar. Take two pounds brown sugar, two tablespoons vinegar, one tablespoon allspice, one tablespoon cloves, one tablespoon black pepper, one-half cup ground mustard and vinegar enough to mix thin. Let it come to a boil, pour over mess in jar and cover air-tight.

MABELLE L. O'BRIEN.
No. 72 West Cedar street, Boston.

GREEN TOMATO SAUCE

INTO a bean pot slice alternate layers of green tomatoes and fairly tart apples pared and cored. When full add molasses in proportion of one cupful to a quart of the mixture and water to little more than half cover. Cover closely and bake from six to eight hours in a medium hot oven. Remove and can immediately. The amount of molasses used may need to be greater or less, according to the acidity of the apples. As far as I know, the above recipe is original. MRS. A. M. MORRELL.
Box No. 138, Georgetown.

CRABAPPLE PRESERVE.

SLICE one-half peck of crabapples (removing core), and to each bowl of apple add a bowl of sugar. About cover with vinegar, add a spice bag containing a cupful of whole cinnamon bark. Boil down until the apples are transparent.

Easily made, will keep unsealed.

Be Sure You Are in Love Before You Think of Marriage

By Beatrice Fairfax

"HOW can I be sure that my love will last?"

That is a question that seems to come as regularly as the postman.

Sometimes it is asked by a girl, sometimes by a man, but always it is rather a difficult one to answer. We all know our own inclinations, but how can one person answer for the steadfastness of another person's affections?

The fundamental trouble is that very often a man proposes to a girl before he is perfectly sure that he loves her.

He may be very much attracted by her and seriously considering whether he loves her when some little thing, such as a moonlight night or the girl's looking unusually pretty, forces the proposal from him.

The girl accepts him and the growth of his love is arrested like a blossom picked before it is in full bloom.

It is in a state where it is equally easy to kill it or to perfect it.

Then it is that he is doubtful as to love's lasting qualities.

When it Is Safe

WHEN a man is perfectly certain that he is willing to work for a girl during the rest of their lives, to honor and protect her and that he cannot be happy without her, it is pretty safe to ask her to marry him.

But if he is merely carried away by a pretty face and the charm of a taking manner he had best go very slowly toward the proposing point.

It is only natural that there will come hours when he will feel impatient toward his sweetheart, even irritated by some habit.

Two people who have grown to man and womanhood in different environments cannot live together without occasional friction until a year or so of matrimony has oiled the domestic machinery.

Patience and forbearance are the best of all oils.

To the young man who feels doubtful of the stability of his love, I would say, "Try giving your sweetheart up; imagine her as being wooed and won by some other man. If you can stand that thought without wincing, by all means give her up—you do not love her well enough to marry her."

On a Steady Basis

THE first year of married life is one of adjustment. The honeymoon is over and the young people find themselves face to face with life's realities.

The husband must make money as well as love, and sometimes the one sadly interferes with the other.

The wife cannot expect quite as much petting and attention as the sweetheart got, and sometimes the poor little bride grows very sorrowful over what she wrongfully imagines is a decrease of her husband's love.

But after the first year things swing into a steady basis of marital happiness.

Do not think that love is dead because it occasionally wanes. It is merely seeking a steady abiding place.

If you feel that you cannot settle down to matrimony you had much better keep out of it, for, though it is the best of all states, it requires tact, patience and love to make it happy.

French Ideas for Mourning Millinery

FRENCH mourning, while more pronounced, more crape-loaded than ours, has an air that quite relieves its somberness. In nothing is this more evident than in its millinery. Always striking and stylish, the advance imported models for the coming Fall and Winter are not only lovelier than ever, but better adapted to American ideas than sometimes happens.

As a rule, the hats are small, close-fitting toques, resting well down on the hair and without the startling tips and tilts to which we have grown accustomed. Mushroom shaped many of them are—but the modified sailor is also seen.

The large picture hat for mourning is reserved for the rather young girl.

Fancy, dull jetted braids are much in evidence. Frequently the whole hat is made of it. Sometimes it is used in combination with silk, or even with crape folds. Whole braid crowns or brims are seen, or a deep facing of the braid on a plain silk foundation.

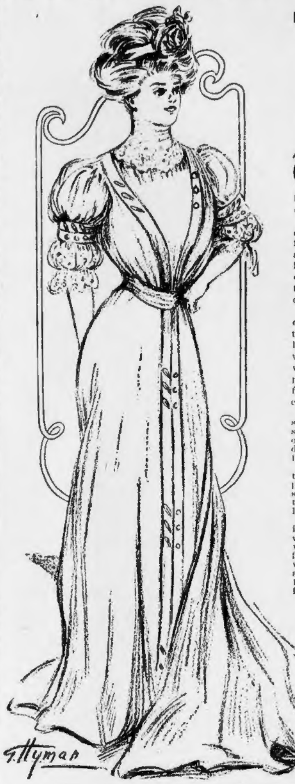
An extremely stylish little black silk turban, to be worn over the face, had a soft crown of jetted braid and a shapely rolling brim of silk, higher on one side, faced half way down with the braid. The sole trimming was folds of soft crape brought round the crown and tied in a loose loop at the back, the folds being held in flat plaits like a closed fan and falling, one about ten inches, the other eight, down the back.

Another dressy little hat had a crown covered with plain black silk, and a rim made of many jabots of soutache braid. The trimming was a large chou of ribbon at one side and a wide wing held by a long jet buckle.

For the older woman who is "dressy" in her tastes, a tiny peaked bonnet made of black chain links of silk through which narrow ribbon is run should prove very popular.

Crepe De Chine

HOUSE GOWN



DAINTY AND INEXPENSIVE HOUSE GOWN

Pretty Lavender Robe of Long, Graceful, Flowing Lines.

THIS simple and pretty housegown is of pale lavender crepe de chine.

The waist is draped in soft folds at each side and opens over a long yoke of Valenciennes lace and full white point d'esprit.

On either side of the vest are two-inch bands of lavender taffeta, which join at the waist and form a panel down the front of the circular-cut skirt.

The sleeves are short puffs of the silk, with bands of taffeta and under puffs and ruffles of lace.

At intervals on the bands are placed three large silk-covered buttons and silk loops.

Skirts for evening and house wear are again very long and flowing, fitting well at the waist and hips and falling in deep, full folds at the feet.

Learn to Forget When You Forgive

WE should never remember a wrong that has once been forgiven. To hold it up before our eyes in a fresh and new light is almost as bad as throwing it in the face of the person who has been pardoned.

Forgetting is the most important part of forgiving. When an injury or wrong is done to us we are often prone to ponder over it so much that we exaggerate its importance.

Then comes the time when the bitterness we felt is wiped away, and softer feelings take its place, because the one who has endeavored to harm us makes the best amends possible and pleads for our forgiveness.

There are few people—particularly among the gentler sex—who are so churlish as to refuse a plea of this kind, and yet how very few of them know what forgiveness really means!

They forgive with their lips—probably with their hearts, but their memory stands aloof and will not take part in the words of peace and forgiveness they utter. If this is the case those words of pardon are but empty.

Those who can afford to forgive can also afford to be generous and forget.

They will never again allow the wrong once done to them to be even thought of, nor any mention of it allowed to let slip; the forgiveness they mete out is complete; the harm and injury done them is entirely swept away; it was written on sand, and the waters of forgiveness have passed over and obliterated all traces.

Too often we only forgive with our lips, and then there comes a day when we forget and allude to the wrong done in the past, which, had our forgiveness been sincere, would never again have been mentioned.

The great question each one of us should ask ourselves before we utter words of pardon is, "Can I forever blot out of my mind all recollection of this injury?" If the answer is not an affirmative one, it is idle to promise forgiveness; the two must go together.

"Let not the sun go down upon your wrath." How often is this command disobeyed, and how often it is obeyed in the letter and not the spirit.

One of the greatest of all womanly virtues which every girl should try to possess, and one which men most reverence, is forgiveness—that true and complete pardon which also forgets.

If we would write all injuries done us, all unkind words said to us, on the sands of our memory, it would not be such a difficult matter to combine forgetfulness with forgiveness.

In this life there is no time to spend in brooding over injuries, or in remembering unkind remarks—life is too short to allow us to recollect all these. What we have to bear in mind is that when we promised to forgive we also promised to forget.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

RATHER LATE IN THE DAY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping steady company with a young lady for four years, and we were engaged to be married in September. About six weeks ago I met another young lady, and it was a case of love at first sight, so I broke with the first young lady, writing her a letter, and told her that I had decided to make a change. Everything was all right with the second one, but I now find out that there is no love like the old, and would like to renew the old friendship, as I am sure she loves me still. I never see her to tell her that I would like to make up. What shall I do?

M. E. S.

IT is too bad you did not know your mind better in the first place. If the young woman has a spark of pride you will find it very hard to win her back. I would suggest your writing her a very humble note telling her that you realize what a mistake you made and asking her to give you another chance. If she does so you had better do your very best to please her by every attention.

ASK HER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

About a year ago I met a girl in the shop where I was working, and from the first minute I met her I learned to love her. Six months after I left that shop, and whenever I met her she treated me very kindly. Three months ago I left that city and started in business for myself in another city. I wrote to her, telling her how I was getting along, and she answered me that she was glad to hear from me and asked me to call whenever I am in the city. Two weeks after that letter I called at her home and was welcomed by her and the whole family. Would you please be so kind and advise me as to the best way to find out whether she cares for me or not. I love her dearly.

D. B.

SHE evidently does like you, so the best thing for you to do is tell her of your love and ask for hers in return. Don't be bashful. Go straight ahead, and I am sure you will be successful in your wooing.

NOT FAIR TREATMENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am keeping company with a young man whom I think a great deal of, but do not show it. He made an appointment to meet me one evening, but he did not come. The next night I met him, and I asked him why he did not keep his promise. He told me that there was someone talking very mean of me to his mother; that's why he did not come. Do you think it is very proper for a young man to disappoint a friend on account of people talking about her? Don't you think it better if he had come and asked me if it was true before he believed anyone else? Please give me your advice as to what I should do.

A. B. C.

HE certainly did not treat you very fairly. He should have gone directly to you and found out whether or not the reports were true. Tell him that you feel that he has not been fair to you. If you can persuade him of that, and he regrets his actions, I see no reason why you should not renew the friendship.

THIS IS THE SHABBY SEASON

THE well-dressed woman discards her Summer finery as early as possible, because it is sure to be shabby, despite care. She has one costume freshened for between-season wear, even when she cannot afford a new frock, and so tides over the shabby season.

What is the use of trying to look smart in Summer and Winter when they are separated by a hopelessly shabby season?

Why not take pattern by the men who discard straw hats on a certain date and regulate the rest of their clothing by that?

New garments give the greatest amount of satisfaction, but to one woman who can afford such luxuries are scores who must plan to get all the possible wear out of every article.

So clever brains evolve wonderful schemes to deceive the keen-eyed public by cleaning dingy hats, touching up faded flowers and adding enough new material to make the "creation" look like a recent acquisition. Frocks are cleansed and pressed and newly trimmed, possibly, and wraps are put through the tailor's hands.

THURSDAY'S SHOPPING PICTURE IS IDENTIFIED

The Original of This Snapshot Will Receive a Prize of $2.

Original of the Photograph Identifies Snapshot and Receives the Award

IT didn't take long to identify the little snapshot of a woman shopper which appeared in Thursday's BOSTON AMERICAN.

The original of the picture appeared yesterday and received the award of $2, which is the daily prize for identifying these pictures, one of which appears every day.

The lucky woman was Miss E. T. Graham, No. 16 Sea Foam avenue, Winthrop, and the photograph was taken on Tremont street about noon Saturday.

The Camera Man gets busy about noon every day. He takes one picture of a busy woman shopper in the vicinity of some store patronized by readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN. Here's hoping YOU may be the next.

Baby Briefs

NEVER turn a baby's head downward while dressing it.

Never lay a baby across your lap on its stomach.

Never use the "indispensable" safety pin. Use buttons instead.

Always put clothes on a baby by way of the feet—never by way of the head.

Make all clothes so that they button at the shoulder and down the sides of the sleeves.

Never let a baby cry. Crying does not develop the lungs. No baby will cry if treated rightly.

Give a baby plenty of physical culture. Begin Indian club exercise as early as possible.

Never make a baby's clothes more than twenty-two inches long.

Let it sit at the table after the toddling age is reached.

AMELIA simpered, immensely flattered and pleased.

"What a fellow you are to carry on so!" she told him, coquettishly. "Why on earth should you be jealous? The idea!"

"Well, I should, and that's a fact," said Mr. Simpson. "Shouldn't wonder, too, if half of 'em are for you. It must be very nice writing letters to a pretty girl like you!"

"Get along with your nonsense! I don't suppose there's a letter at all for me," and Amelia glanced through the budget. "Four for Mr. Bywater, one for Miss Bywater, two circulars, one for Miss Freda Vail," she announced. "Now, are you satisfied, Mr. Jealous?"

"Well, I don't mind admitting you've set my mind at ease," said Mr. Simpson. "When's your night out? Thursday, I suppose?"

Amelia nodded.

"Now, curiously enough, I have a night off on Thursday, too. It would be funny if I were to run up against you just as you happened to be leaving this house on Thursday night, wouldn't it?" he said.

Amelia simpered, inwardly enraptured; every one of her friends would be jealous of her if she were seen with the smart young man, and already her mind was busying itself with the question of what she should wear on the occasion—her big black hat, of course, with the drooping ostrich feather—of which she knew her mistress disapproved, a fact that did not trouble her in the slightest—and that white muslin blouse with the pink spots.

With this delightful prospect in her mind she tossed the handful of letters on to the chair that stood in the narrow hall.

"That's a bad shot," said Mr. Simpson, as some of the letters missed the chair and fell on to the linoleum. "Allow me."

A Neat Trick

This affable young man went quickly across the plot of grass, stepped carefully over the clean steps, to dirty them as little as possible, and, picking up the fallen letters, placed them in a neat heap on the chair, and was out in the front again in next to no time.

"Wouldn't have done for your missus to have seen me trespassing in her hall," he remarked lightly, "or she might have thought I wanted to pinch the stair carpet!" At which humorous sally Amelia laughed heartily.

At that moment Mrs. Bywater herself appeared from the kitchen, having heard Amelia's voice in conversation, and she gave a frowning glance at the young man.

"Amelia," she said, sharply, "it is quite time that you had finished those steps!" in a warning voice.

"I'd best be making a move," said Mr. Simpson, "or you will be getting into hot water, Amelia. Thursday, then?"

"Thursday, at seven o'clock," said Amelia, smiling, after a defiant glance at her mistress, as she picked up her pail and cloths to be carried round to the back. "Good morning, Mr. Simpson."

He raised his hat and walked down the street. He was smiling quietly to himself, as though something had pleased him.

He turned into the nearest saloon and after ordering a drink he sat down and took from his pocket a letter. It was addressed to "Miss Freda Vail," and had been one of the budget that Amelia had flung on to the chair in the hall—a letter that Mr. Ted Simpson had abstracted when he politely picked up those that had fallen.

Putting the letter on a table face downward, he carefully inserted a long pencil under the flap where the gum ended, and out at the other side; then gently he made the pencil revolve toward the point of the flap.

With very little trouble and in a short space of time, the letter was open, without the flap being at all broken. He drew out the letter.

There was no address on the note and no name, but that did not trouble the man; he had expected it.

"My dear Freda," the letter began, "I had to leave you hurriedly in the station the other day because we were watched—someone had followed you to discover whom you were meeting. So I was prevented from asking you for a description of the man you told me you saw leaving Zingara's rooms that night—the man whom you said you would know anywhere.

"It is of the most vital importance to me to have a detailed description of this man. I dare not meet you again, as the police are evidently watching your movements, so please write, dear, without delay, telling me everything you possibly can; remember about the appearance of this man. No matter how trivial anything may seem, still tell me. You are to address your letters to Mr. James Bartlett, care of Mr. Gregson, tobacconist, 1300 Sixth avenue. Write at once, dear, for both our sakes. And destroy this letter at once; on no account must any one see it; I cannot impress this on you too strongly."

Rough on Amelia

Mr. Simpson read the letter through with immense satisfaction in his face.

He carefully copied out the address of the tobacconist into a note book; then he replaced the letter in the envelope, took a small tin from his pocket containing what looked like paste, and with his finger carefully smeared some of this adhesive preparation inside the flap, and stuck it down again.

A little later, when he judged that the gum would be dry, he walked down the street again.

He slipped the letter addressed to Freda Vail through the slit in the door of No. 303, and walked quickly away.

Amelia came out from the kitchen to find the letter lying on the door mat.

"I never knew the letter carrier to come at this time before; this must be something he's forgotten," she reflected as she picked it up. As she saw the address she added with surprise: "Blessed if I didn't think this letter came for Miss Freda when I was cleaning the steps."

It never once entered her head that the fascinating Mr. Simpson could have abstracted it.

"He's quite a gentleman; so polite and attentive, and all that—and the way he raised his hat!" ran on her thoughts somewhat irrelevantly. "I'm quite looking forward to Thursday night!"

But perhaps a disappointment was in store for Amelia on the Thursday night she was thinking of; for now that he had obtained a glimpse of that letter from Olga Vail, and his purpose had been served, Mr. Simpson's interest in her had quite evaporated.

It was rough on Amelia.

CHAPTER CXIII.

In the Rear Room

IN the small window of Tobacconist Gregson's store reposed some faded, dummy tobacco packets, a box of cigars that suggested market garden produce diverted from its legitimate purpose, a tray of cheap pipes and one self-consciously gorgeous pouch in red plush that was always taken out of the window as soon as the sun faced that direction.

It would never do for a valuable pouch to lie exposed to the sun. If it was hard enough to sell it in this neighborhood in its resplendent newness, what would its chance be if the brilliant crimson were to be faded?

Prominent in the window was a notice: "Letters may be addressed here. Five cents each." And this branch of his trade at any rate, Mr. Gregson found profitable.

A good many people seemed to have correspondents, who for some reason or other did not write to them at their place of abode. Curiously enough, many of these letters taken in at Mr. Gregson's were addressed to the feminine sex, of whom not a few had the prefix of "Mrs." Sometimes, Mr. Gregson would take in as many as fifty letters a week.

A man, quietly dressed, had stopped in front looking at this notice; it was early morning. He walked inside, and the tobacconist, a little, sandy-haired man, came out of the back room behind the shop.

"Good morning, sir," he said effusively.

The man on the other side of the counter was not, he saw, one of his regular customers.

MAYOR RAPS SULLIVAN IN HIS JOURNAL

Declares Appeal of Secret Seven Impractical and Abusive.

SEE VICTORY FOR MORAN

Declaring that the statement of the Seven Stealthy Sleuths of the Thorndike regarding the candidacy of John B. Moran is not only too long to be practical, but is also abusive, Mayor Fitzgerald takes a subtle fling at John A. Sullivan in to-day's issue of the Republic. The statement is as follows:

"We still think, as we did weeks ago, that Mr. Moran has the inside track. He easily has the lead in Boston, and will maintain it, and we are of the opinion that Moran delegates will be elected in most of the large cities of the Commonwealth next week.

"The statement which was issued in behalf of Mr. Whitney was too long to be practical. It was likewise abusive, which is never helpful in a political campaign to the side indulging in it. It is too bad that the Democracy cannot get together this year and meet the common enemy unitedly, but the outlook is not too bright at present.

"The Democratic delegates, however, ought not to permit themselves to be deflected from the path of intelligent and wise political action in the convention by the pleas of any man or any set of men, no matter what positions of honor or responsibility they may hold in the Democratic party. This is not the bosses' year."

Mayor Fitzgerald's statement is no surprise to those who know the real feeling between him and the new would-be boss of the State Democracy. Last Fall while Sullivan supported Fitzgerald he publicly stated that "neither Fitzgerald nor Donovan" was fit to be Mayor of Boston. The Mayor has never forgiven this, and likewise his own attitude on the Moran candidacy has not overpleased Sullivan. The latter has privately made some very severe strictures upon the kind of politics the Mayor was indulging in, and the latter now hands Mr. Sullivan a bouquet.

Friends of the Mayor assert that Sullivan is simply "sore" because he could not secure the Democratic nomination himself last Fall.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY ON TRACK

The body of an unidentified man was found on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad tracks between the Norfolk Downs and Atlantic stations early today. The man was about thirty-five years old, and wore a light Summer suit. In the pockets were found a two-cent piece, a large dirk knife and a bunch of keys, to which was attached a tag that bore the name of "N. S. Hunter." The Quincy police believe that the man was a tramp who tried to jump a freight and fell under the train. A resident of Squantum street reported that the man was seen about there at midnight.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

Big Piano Bargains

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms

Swell Bargains This Week. The pianos on the well-known standard high class makes quoted below will not be changed for at least six days. Many fine new and second-hand uprights of other quality first-grade makers will go for so little that you would hardly believe the prices if we quoted them.

Don't Pay Piano Trust Big Profits

Just remember that we pay no commissions of any kind. We have no high rents to pay, no big agents' or retailers' profits to get out of you, no teachers' little "Rake off" to take out of your pocket. All these sums of money must be added to the original legitimate profit of the maker when you buy a piano at the Gilded Piano Warerooms down in the High Rent District—and remember you pay it all.

$5 DOWN, $1 PER WEEK.

Liberal terms to responsible parties. Get in early and select best bargains. Pianos shipped free to all parts of the United States.

Write to-day for full bargain list. We have dozens of fine Pianos not in the above list, left over from special sales, etc. Some Pianos for beach or country houses almost given away.

Free delivery anywhere in unmarked wagons; goods guaranteed as represented or money refunded; 1,000 rooms to let for storage, building so large; entrance will be where you see the red flag; sale positive all this week; open Monday, Tuesday and Sat. eve. till 9 p. m. ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOMS, J. P. Collins, Prop., 725 Shawmut av., corner Williams st., Roxbury. Take any Shawmut av. car or the Elevated to Northampton st. and change for car going up Washington to Williams st.

A MAN ONCE SAID

He would some day own a Piano, but he always put it off with the idea he could not afford it, etc. Now, if we can show you a plan where by the outlay of a few pennies a day you may possess one of the best pianos in the world, and have nearly all makes to select from, would you try it? If so, and you want further particulars, cut out this coupon.

HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, SEPTEMBER 22, 1906

Rules for Automobile Owners.

They Should Be Enforced by Motorists Themselves—by the People if Necessary.

The automobile and its relatively high speed can be looked upon AS A PERMANENT FEATURE OF CIVILIZATION.

As we have often said, they will be, in the future, of greater value to the man of small means than to the man of great wealth. The man who interferes with the automobile now or discourages its development is near-sighted, foolish, HARMFUL TO HIMSELF, whether he be worth a great deal of money or none at all.

But there is no doubt that many of the men that drive automobiles are in need of education. They should get it from their fellow automobile owners. If that isn't effective, they should get it in very severe doses from the people.

The sensible man, running his automobile sanely and decently, suffers through the folly of every idiot risking the lives of other people in addition to his own worthless life.

Automobile clubs should work to prevent the reckless man from using the streets. Licenses should be forfeited for a long time in every case of wilful carelessness.

The automobile industry is injured, the safety of all owners of machines and the safety of the public are endangered by every reckless, thoughtless, incompetent idiot running a machine.

There should be no excuse whatever FOR INJURING A YOUNG CHILD.

It should be distinctly understood that the child has a RIGHT to be in the street or on the road. It is the business of the man in the automobile TO SEE THE CHILD AND KEEP AWAY FROM IT. It is no excuse to say that the child "ran in front of the machine."

It is the business of the man in the machine absolutely to keep away from the child, to slacken speed, TO MAKE SURE THAT HE IS NOT GOING TO DESTROY A HUMAN LIFE—because he knows the child is young, ignorant, timid and incompetent.

A man killing a child under any circumstances whatever should go to jail for a length of time sufficient to impress upon him the value of a child's life. If that were the rule, it would not be necessary to impress upon automobile drivers the fact that it is their business to look out for children and not the child's business to look out for them. A child's ignorance or mischief does not excuse murder.

Drivers of automobiles have no right to FRIGHTEN ANYBODY. They have no right to come so close to a carriage as to frighten the people in it. They may know, or THINK they know, that there is no danger. But the elderly man or woman in the carriage does NOT know that. And it is as much of an outrage to FRIGHTEN an old person as it is to strike that person.

The same is true of elderly people on foot. For an old man or an old woman, the machine should be slowed down or stopped, with plenty of warning and plenty of room given. The man who has so little consideration for age as to terrify an old man or woman, no matter how well HE may know that there is no physical danger, IS NOT FIT TO MANAGE AN AUTOMOBILE.

In the city, where children are playing in the streets, automobiles should be run at a very low speed all of the time.

In very dusty country roads the driver of an automobile should go slowly when passing a carriage or in passing women and chidren on the side of the road.

A man may have A "RIGHT" to throw clouds of dust into the faces of other human beings, but he is not fit for human society if he exercises that right.

The various automobile associations should frame rules and enforce them. They should use their influence to have laws passed compelling automobilists to respect the rights of citiezns under pain of forfeiting their licenses.

Such action on the part of automobile owners will prevent other and much more disagreeable action on the part of the public.

Always Read THE END of the Story

The Truth and the Moral Are in the Last Chapter of Most Human Lives, as in Most Books

Some time ago, perhaps, you read about a very young man, Charles Wilson, who was called "The Boy King of Wall Street."

Men and women, reading of this lad's sudden, accidental wealth, acquired by gambling, may have been tempted to follow in his path.

The newspapers told the story—as they usually do, coldly, in a matter-of-fact way—without bothering to predict any end to the career of the "Wall Street Boy King."

At that particular time, when the unhappy boy, gambling in that disreputable gambling institution called "The Stock Exchange," had piled up his unearned thousands of dollars, any sermon would have been declared out of place.

BUT THE SERMON HAS COME, NEVERTHELESS.

Did you read the other day about the death of a boy who threw himself before a trolley car deliberately and was cut to pieces?

THAT WAS THE SAME "BOY KING OF WALL STREET."

That was the same Charles Wilson, only HE HAD COME TO THE LAST CHAPTER IN HIS STORY.

The gambling machine that gave him the money took it away, took more—and took courage with it.

The poor lad found, as many others have found, as thousands and thousands will find, that there is no happiness except that which is based on real effort.

He learned that what men get and don't earn they are not apt to keep.

There can only be sympathy for this poor young man, dragged into the gambling whirlpool in his boyhood, and quickly whirled through the gamblers' gantlet.

It would be a good thing if the last chapter in his story could be told as conspicuously as was the opening chapter of profit.

Men must learn that gambling means death—morally if not physically.

It is dangerous and shameful to allow gambling on a big scale when it is forbidden on a small scale.

The honorable, necessary business transactions of the stock exchange should be separated by law from the gambling feature, AND THAT SHOULD BE SUPPRESSED.

Little Editorials from the People

ROOSEVELT'S CONSISTENCY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I wish to thank you for your editorial of September 14. I am an employe of the United States government, and therefore know that you speak the truth. For obvious reasons I do not sign my name to the letter, but I still possess the God-given right to think, even though I cannot affix my signature to my thoughts expressed in my letter. At the time the order, signed by the President, was issued forbidding letter carriers, postal clerks, in fact all employes of the government, seeking, directly or indirectly, influence from friends at or away from Washington, D. C., tending to better their condition in life—in short, to rise from a menial to a skilled employe by having their ability recognized and rewarded as in every other line of work—at this same time, I say, Cabinet officers, whose salaries and expenses are paid from the treasury of our country, were stumping this land from Maine to California, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, seeking the nomination of the present incumbent of the office of President—for him who had declared that should we be found guilty of trying to better our condition we should be "summarily dismissed from the service."

Truly, "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

Dinkelspiel Tries to Cheer Looey

By George V. Hobart

Copyright, 1906, by American-Journal-Examiner

HOME, LATELY.

MEIN LIEBER LOOEY—Your letter from Bay City, Wis., is to hand, und ve vas all sorry to hear it dot you ain'd feeling so vell und dot you haf der blues.

Your mother says dot I should make you in dis letter a nice bunch of chokes vich vould mebbe cheerful you a leedle. I ain'd much of a hand mit chokes mineself, but I vas talking mit Gust Bauerschmidt yesterday, und he laughed me intensely.

You know Gust Bauerschmidt, Looey!

He is der floorvalker in a information bureau at der South Terminal.

Gust vent into a barber shop der udder day.

"Say!" set der barber, "your hair needs cutting in der vorst vay!"

"Yes," set Gust, "dot's der vay you cut it last time!"

Gust has a leedle boy py der name of Chonny, und he vas sliding down der banisters der udder day ven his mother caught him.

"Vot was you didding, son?" she inkvired.

"I vas making trousers for der orphans," said leedle Chonny.

"Chonny," set Gust to his son, "I vant you to be a goot boy."

"I vill be goot if you gif me a nickel," set Chonny.

"No," set Gust, "I vant you to remember dot you cannot be a son of mine unless you be goot for nudding."

Gust got a new cook at his house und his vife set to her, "Minnie, haf you cracked dose nuts for dinner?"

"Yessum," set Minnie, "all but der big vuns—I couldn't get dem in my mouth!"

Gust's vife vas vun day in a large compartment store ven der floorvalker rushed up to her und set, "Hurry ould, Madam, der store vas on fire!"

"Ach! is it?" set Gust's vife; "den I vill vait for der fire sale!"

Gust vas talking mit his doctor vun day, eggspressing his symptoms, und he set, "Doctor, vas Velch rabbits unhealthy?"

"I couldn't say," set der doctor; "I vas nefer called in to attend vun."

Vun day a man came up to Gust und set, "Say, doan'd you vant to buy vun of dese attachments dey put on a piano to make it go?"

"Nein," set Gust; "der Sheriff put vun on our piano two days ago, und it's gone!"

A tramp rushed up to Gust vun day vile he vas in der bureau und tried to vork him for der price of a ticket.

"I vas trying to get home to my poor olt mother," set der tramp. "She ain't seen my face for ten years."

"I guess dot vas der truth," set Gust; "vy doan'd you vash it vunce?"

Gust vas buying a horse von day from a horse dealer in New Rochelle.

"Is der horse sure-footed?" inkvired Gust.

"Dot horse sure-footed!" set der dealer; "vell, I should say so! Vy, he kicked my vife's mother three times in der same spot."

Gust has a dog. It is a dachshund.

Gust calls him a bird dog because he valks pigeon-toed.

Sometimes I dink Gust's dog must be a spaniel, because he likes to chump in der vater und soak.

I dink Gust's vatch must be a spaniel also. It is in soak most of der time.

Gust's dog vunce saved a house from burning. Der dog found a box of matches on der floor and swallowed dem before dey dit any damage.

Der dog has been light-headed efer since.

Gust's dog is very smart. He vanted to learn to be a vatch dog, so he ate der alarm clock.

I hope dese vill cheerful you, Loey.

But if dey doan'd tease laughability, remember, Looey, dot Gust is der manufacturer.

Your father vas only der retailer und should be kept blameless.

Yours mit luff,
D. DINKELSPIEL,
Per George V. Hobart.

Glimpses Into the Air

By Julian Hawthorne

WHILE that public favorite, plucky and persistent little Santos-Dumont, is every day getting his dirigible balloon a little closer into the wind's eye, and Bell of the telephone is inviting us to the skies with an organism of paper pyramids, and the aeroplane of the late Professor Langley is still mistaking the reflection of heaven in the lake for the real thing overhead—at this stage of our efforts to solve the problem of flight comes booming from remote India the voice of Olcott of the Theosophists, informing us that nothing can be effected in that direction unless the protagonists harbor in their systems (that is, as I understand, in their personal equations) "an able-bodied sylph" or so.

Pending the receipt from the Colonel of further information as to where sufficient supplies of sylph may be had, and how they are to be digested, we had better be planning such architectural and other modifications of our present civilized appurtenances as may adapt them to the approaching amphibious mode of existence.

An occult prophetic intuition has already prompted us to a growing indulgence in the roof-garden habit. Moreover, in a recent World's Fair, a model of a house upside down attracted much favorable attention.

These are hints. Obviously, as we must in future get at our dwellings, and our business generally, from above instead of from below—must go down stairs before going up—appropriate changes must be made. Streets and traffic will be in the air, and the front door mat, the lawn, and the area must somehow be disposed accordingly.

How to manage about national boundaries, custom houses and the fortifications of the Rockefeller estates is still somewhat of a puzzle.

Meanwhile it is agreeable to reflect that the areas now given up to jails will be set free for private estates, because criminals, after being handcuffed and shackled, will be harnessed to flying machines, which will lift them forever out of the way into the empyrean.

There is hope that a means will be found so to apply the energy of radium as to counteract the pull of gravitation, in which case everything will be easy, though very different. But some one must induce Colonel Olcott to reveal the whereabouts of a good sylph quarry.
